

Sir Arthur Hurst

(Born 23 July 1879, died 17 August 1944)

This year the British Society of Gastroenterology celebrates the Centenary of the birth of Sir Arthur Hurst, the Society's founder. In 1935 he wrote to Dr Georges Brohée of Brussels, who was making plans to form a Société Internationale de Gastro-Enterologie, saying 'A private Gastro-Enterological Club has been formed in Great Britain which will meet once a year in various cities the day before the Association of Physicians'. From this arose (in 1937) the British Society, which now has nearly 1000 members, and Hurst was its first President.

Few physicians have stimulated more young doctors to think for themselves and to argue about causes than did Sir Arthur (Figure). His approach to bedside medicine was basically physiological, and that great change which came over internal medicine in the early years of the 20th century from the pathology of structure to that of function owes much to his example.
