

SELF-DIRECTED LEARNING

Self-directed learning (SDL) refers to when an individual identifies their learning needs and sets their own educational objectives.

DEFINITION

"In its broadest meaning, SDL describes a process in which individuals take the initiative, with or without the help of others, in diagnosing their learning needs, formulating learning goals, identifying resources for learning, choosing and implementing appropriate learning strategies, and evaluating learning outcomes" (Knowles, 1975, p. 18).

EXAMPLES

Child exploration

A toddler enters an unfamiliar room and immediately begins exploring the surroundings and learning about them.

Reading self-help books

Mika enjoys reading self-help books about how to become inspired and motivated to reach your fullest potential.

Fitzpatrick, 2015-02-20 Print CourseSmart Health Promotion in Schools, Universities, Workplaces, and Communities Graça S. Carvalho, Emily Darlington, Teresa Vilaça, 2024-12-17 Health education well being improvement and advocacy are effective health promotion strategies among cutting edge Public Health practices Salutogenic perspectives rooted in ecological models have taken their rightful place to empower individuals and communities to change their life ecosystems and preserve and improve their health It is imperative to shift from targeting protective or risk factors which have linear causal relationships with health conditions and or comorbidities and encompass a systemic understanding of the role of health determinants in creating health. Individual, collective, and structural ecological approaches can better reduce health inequities. Moreover, engaging the presumed beneficiaries from such strategies ensures that actual needs are identified and choices are context specific. It improves the whole implementation process as well as its results. Higher levels of participation such as co-creation imply a bottom-up voluntary collaborative process rooted in values of diversity, mutual trust, openness, autonomy, freedom, and respect, as well as shared expertise, responsibility, and decision making, which are essential values in co-creating health promotion.
