A Mission to Civilize Alice L. Conklin, 1997 This book addresses a central but often ignored question in the history of modern France and modern colonialism How did the Third Republic highly regarded for its professed democratic values allow itself to be seduced by the insidious and persistent appeal of a civilizing ideology with distinct racist overtones By focusing on a particular group of colonial officials in a specific setting the governors general of French West Africa from 1895 to 1930 the author argues that the ideal of a special civilizing mission had a decisive impact on colonial policymaking and on the evolution of modern French republicanism generally French ideas of civilization simultaneously republican racist and modern encouraged the governors general in the 1890 s to attack such feudal African institutions as aristocratic rule and slavery in ways that referred back to France s own experience of revolutionary change Ironically local administrators in the 1920 s also invoked these same ideas to justify such reactionary policies as the reintroduction of forced labor arguing that coercion which inculcated a work ethic in the lazy African legitimized his loss of freedom By constantly invoking the ideas of civilization colonial policy makers in Dakar and Paris managed to obscure the fundamental contradictions between the rights of man guaranteed in a republican democracy and the forcible acquisition of an empire that violates those rights In probing the republican dimension of French colonization in West Africa this book also sheds new light on the evolution of the Third Republic between 1895 and 1930 One of the author s principal arguments is that the idea of a civilized mission underwent dramatic changes due to ideological political and economic transformations occurring simultaneously in France and its colonies For example revolts in West Africa as well as a more conservative climate in the metropole after World War I produced in the governors general a new respect for feudal chiefs whom the French once despised but now reinstated as a means of control This discovery of an African tradition in turn reinforced a reassertion of traditional values in France as the Third Republic struggled to recapture the world it had lost at Verdun

Cinema, Colonialism, Postcolonialism Dina Sherzer, 2010-07-05 In this first major study of French colonial and postcolonial cinema Dina Sherzer compiles essays by some of the foremost scholars on the subject who interrogate and analyze the realities behind the images of the nation's past and present Through an examination of France and its colonies multiethnic contemporary France and cinematic discourses which have been and are being produced about France's colonial past these authors explore how the images relay underlying assumptions and their relation to historical and political facts A variety of subjects and viewpoints inform these studies which cover the entire range of films on that topic

The authors expound upon the role French and Francophone films are currently playing in reconstructing and imagining France's colonial past. Not only do the essays examine how French cinema has represented the encounter of French citizens with individuals from former colonies during the colonial era, they examine how French cinema has portrayed and has come to terms with the immigration of former colonial subjects to France. In addition, the book features another postcolonial facet by analyzing films of directors from the former colonies who give their own representation of colonialism and presentation of their culture. This study is a major contribution to postcolonial research. Race, gender, and geography are central themes throughout this book that presents innovative material that contributes to the history of French cinema and emphasizes how cinema participates in and is a part of national culture.

From Fetish to Subject Carole Sweeney, 2004-10-30. Was modern primitivism complicit with the ideologies of colonialism or was it a multivalent encounter with difference? Examining race and modernism through a wider and more historically contextualized study, Sweeney brings together a variety of published and new scholarship to expand the discussion on the links between modernism and primitivism. Tracing the path from Dada and Surrealism to Josephine Baker and Nancy Cunard's Negro, an anthology she shows the development of n grophilie from the interest in black cultural forms in the early 1920s to a more serious engagement with difference and representations in the 1930s. Considering modernism, race, and colonialism simultaneously, this work breaks from traditional boundaries of disciplines or geographic areas. Why was the primitive so popular in this era? Sweeney shows how high popular and mass cultural contexts constructed primitivism and how black diasporic groups in Paris challenged this construction. Included is research from original archival material from black diasporic publications in Paris examining their challenges to primitivism in French literature and state-sponsored exoticism. The transatlantic movement of modernism and primitivism also is part of this broad comparative study.

Ebola's Message Nicholas G. Evans, Tara C. Smith, Maimuna S. Majumder, 2024-11-26. Interdisciplinary perspectives on the science, politics, and ethics of the 2013-2015 Ebola virus disease outbreak. The 2013-2015 outbreak of the Ebola virus disease (EVD) was a public health disaster: 28,575 infections and 11,313 deaths as of October 2015, devastating the countries of Guinea, Liberia, and Sierra Leone. A slow and mismanaged international response and sensationalistic media coverage seized upon by politicians to justify wrongheaded policy. And yet there were also promising developments that may improve future responses to infectious disease epidemics: the UN Security Council's first involvement in a public health event, a series of promising clinical treatments and vaccines for EVD, and recognition of the need for a global public health system to deal with epidemics that cross national borders. This volume offers a range of perspectives on these and other lessons learned with essays on the science, politics, and ethics of the Ebola outbreak. The contributors discuss topics including the virology and management of EVD in both rich and poor nations the spread of the disease with an essay by a leader of M decins Sans Frontiers racist perceptions of West Africa mainstream and social media responses to Ebola and the ethical issue of whether to run clinical trials of experimental treatments during an outbreak Contributors Christian L Althaus Daniel G Bausch Adia Benton Michael J Connor Jr Kim Yi Dionne Nicholas G Evans Morenike Oluwatoyin Folayan Stephen Goldstein Bridget Haire Patricia C Henwood Kelly Hills Cyril Ibe Marjorie Kruvand Lisa M Lee Maimuna S Majumder Alexandra L Phelan Annette Rid Cristine Russell Lara Schwarz Laura Seay Michael Selgelid Tara C Smith Armand Sprecher Paradise Past Robert W. Kirk, 2012-11-07 In the 400 years from Magellan's entrance into Pacific waters to 1920 the lives of the people of the South Pacific were utterly transformed Exotic diseases from Europe and America particularly the worldwide influenza pandemic were deadly for islanders Ardent missionaries changed the belief systems and lives of nearly all Polynesians Aborigines and those Papuans and Melanesians living in areas accessible to westerners By 1920 every island and atoll in the South Seas had been claimed as a colony or protectorate of a power such as Britain France or the United States Factors aiding this imperial sweep included European outposts such as Sydney advances in maritime technology the work of missionaries a desire to profit from the area's relatively sparse resources and international rivalry that led to the scramble for colonies The coming of westerners as this book points out was not entirely negative as head hunting cannibalism chronic warfare human sacrifice and other practices were diminished but whole cultures were irreversibly changed or even eradicated Imperial Rule and the Politics of Nationalism Adia K. Lawrence, 2013-09-16 During the first half of the twentieth century movements seeking political equality emerged in France's overseas territories Within twenty years they were replaced by movements for national independence in the majority of French colonies protectorates and mandates In this pathbreaking study of the decolonization era Adia Lawrence asks why elites in French colonies shifted from demands for egalitarian and democratic reforms to calls for independent statehood and why mass mobilization for independence emerged where and when it did Lawrence shows that nationalist discourses became dominant as a consequence of the failure of the reform agenda Where political rights were granted colonial subjects opted for further integration and reform Contrary to conventional accounts nationalism was not the only or even the primary form of anti colonialism Lawrence shows further that mass nationalist protest occurred only when and where French authority was disrupted Imperial crises were the cause not the result of mass protest The French Imperial Nation-State Gary Wilder, 2020-05-08 France experienced a period of crisis following World War I when the relationship between the nation and its colonies became a subject of public debate The French Imperial Nation State focuses on two intersecting movements that redefined imperial politics colonial humanism led by administrative reformers in West Africa and the Paris based Negritude project comprising African and Caribbean elites Gary Wilder develops a sophisticated account of the contradictory character of colonial government and examines the cultural nationalism of Negritude as a multifaceted movement rooted in an alternative black public sphere He argues that interwar France must be understood as an imperial nation state an integrated sociopolitical system that linked a parliamentary republic to an administrative empire An interdisciplinary study of colonial modernity combining French history colonial studies and social theory The French Imperial Nation State will compel readers to revise conventional assumptions about the distinctions between republicanism and racism metropolitan and colonial societies and national and transnational processes

Albert Camus the Algerian David Carroll, 2007-05-04 This original reading of Albert Camus novels short stories and political essays concentrates on Camus conflicted relationship with his Algerian background and finds important critical insights into issues of justice the effects of colonial oppression and the deadly cycle of terrorism and counterterrorism that characterized the Algerian War and continues to surface in the devastation of postcolonial wars today David Carroll emphasizes the Algerian dimensions of Camus literary and philosophical texts and highlights his understanding of both the injustice of colonialism and the tragic nature of Algeria's struggle for independence By refusing to accept that the sacrifice of innocent human lives can ever be justified even in the pursuit of noble political goals and by rejecting simple ideological binaries West vs East Christian vs Muslim us vs them good vs evil Camus work offers an alternative to the stark choices that characterized his troubled times and continue to define our own
