The Finger of the Scribe William M. Schniedewind, 2019-10-14

One of the enduring problems in biblical studies is how the Bible came to be written. Clearly, scribes were involved. But our knowledge of scribal training in ancient Israel is limited. William Schniedewind explores the unexpected cache of inscriptions discovered at a remote Iron Age military post called Kuntillet Ajrud to assess the question of how scribes might have been taught to write. Here, far from such urban centers as Jerusalem or Samaria, plaster walls and storage pithoi were littered with inscriptions. Apart from the sensational nature of some of the contents, perhaps suggesting Yahweh had a consort, these inscriptions also reflect actual writing practices among soldiers stationed near the frontier. What emerges is a very different picture of how writing might have been taught, as opposed to the standard view of scribal schools in the main population centers.

Bachvarova,2016-03-10 This book provides a groundbreaking reassessment of the prehistory of Homeric epic It argues that in the Early Iron Age bilingual poets transmitted to the Greeks a set of narrative traditions closely related to the one found at Bronze Age Hattusa the Hittite capital Key drivers for Near Eastern influence on the developing Homeric tradition were the shared practices of supralocal festivals and venerating divinized ancestors and a shared interest in creating narratives about a legendary past using a few specific storylines theogonies genealogies connecting local polities long distance travel destruction of a famous city because it refuses to release captives and trying to overcome death when confronted with the loss of a dear companion Professor Bachvarova concludes by providing a fresh explanation of the origins and significance of the Greco Anatolian legend of Troy thereby offering a new solution to the long debated question of the historicity of the Trojan War A Handbook to Old Testament Exegesis William P. Brown,2017-03-17 Designed for both Hebrew and non

Andrew Dearman,M. Patrick Graham,2002-04-01 A collection of seventeen articles by colleagues and former students of Professor J Maxwell Miller who taught at the Candler School of Theology Emory University The papers deal with the history chronology geography archaeology and epigraphy of ancient Israel and its setting in the Levant and range from broad methodological discussions of historiography to focused analyses of individual texts or historical issues A review of Miller s career and a select bibliography of his publications are also included The First
