One of Addams first major accomplishments was creating the, "Hull House". Burbaker states about Addams, "believed that a settlement house should bring people from different classes together to learn from one another. Addams also encouraged residents to pursue their own ideas and programs." (Burbaker, J) In 1888 Addams' pure commitment for the good of the people became a reality. As Stevenson states, "At Hull House, the poor had the opportunity to indulge in educational and cultural experiences. Within a few years, Addams and her staff were caring for some 2,000 people weekly, all the while promoting the idea of caring for others in need. This concept would be later be known as social work." (Stevenson, K) For Jane Addams to create the Hull House was a marvelous act for the spread of humanitarianism in America.
