Kagan, 2023 Most thoughtful people worry at one time or another about whether there can actually be such a thing as objective moral truth They might wonder for example whether the prevalence of moral disagreement makes it reasonable to conclude that there aren t really any moral facts at all Or they might be bothered by questions like these What could objective moral facts possibly be like Isn t it obvious that morality is simply relative to particular societies and particular times If there were moral facts how could we ever come to know anything about them Can morality really have the motivating and rational force we normally take it to have How can one possibly find a place for objective moral values in a scientific worldview Some people are driven by questions like these to the conclusion that we should embrace skepticism about morality denying the very existence of anything worthy of the name In Answering Moral Skepticism Shelly Kagan shows how those who accept the existence of objective moral truth can provide plausible answers to these questions Focusing throughout on issues that trouble reflective individuals Kagan provides an accessible defense of the belief in objective morality will be of interest to both students of metaethics as well as anyone worried about the objectivity of their own moral judgements     Database and Expert Systems Applications Abdelkader Hameurlain, Stephen W.

Liddle, Klaus-Dieter Schewe, Xiaofang Zhou, 2011-08-19 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 22 International Conference on Database and Expert Systems Applications DEXA 2011 held in Toulouse France August 29 September 2 2011 The 52 revised full papers and 40 short papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 207 submissions The papers are organized in topical sections on XML querying and views data mining queries and search semantic web information retrieval business applications user support indexing queries views and data warehouses ontologies physical aspects of databases Design distribution miscellaneous topics     Knowledge Transfer from Germany to China Thomas M. Fasser, 2019-02-20 Many western companies went East and started subsidiaries also in China to use large costs reduction potentials and to get new market shares at potential 1.3 billion customers. This hype was justified with the resulting success of the companies and the rise of China to the world's biggest economy. Starting new business in China is not only related with success and increasing profit because before being successful a functional factory has to be set up. This includes the setup of a suitable and efficient Quality Management System (QMS) and the according Knowledge transfer. This sounds easy but not all of the enthusiastic firms made it through the built up phase. This study researches the theoretical background of Chinese business environment according to the High Level Structure needs of the ISO 9001 and then compares the culture and also investigates the individual network system. This theoretical analysis is then merged with the quantitative and qualitative results of an expert survey of German experts of companies with comparable industrial products and QMS. The result is that the cultural differences are big enough to be considered when making the strategy plan. Especially hierarchical and group social differences make it necessary that the right people have to be prepared to be sent to the subsidiary for a certain period. For the Quality topics the focus should be on the freedom for process adjustments, content of inspection plans, audit strategies, supplier management and failure analysis. Here has to be created and trained a more sensitivity not only to push colleagues or suppliers but also to develop them. Cost pressure makes it necessary to produce also more complex products in China why the suppliers also have to be fit for this new challenge. In the end it can be said that the successful startup mainly depends on the right people placed in higher hierarchical positions who train the new colleagues on site continuously and with great patience.
