Pasgaard-Westerman, 2018-09-10 Pasgaard Westerman rethinks the ontological and epistemological understanding of world other and self by opposing the general anthropological paradigm within contemporary philosophy Signs and interpretations are not functions of Man instead Man is conceived as certain signo interpretational relations to world other and self

Opposing more traditional hermeneutical approaches the signo interpretational relations towards world other and self are understood as a skeptical disposition This skeptical disposition undercuts usual epistemological problems of skepticism and instead designates the permanent incompleteness of the process of interpretation and formulates an ethical imperative This ethical imperative aims at an active dissolution of fixed signs an openness towards other signs and the holding back of definite interpretations The book discusses how world appear as a sign world how the other appear within interpretational patterns and how our signs of self are experienced Discussing a wide range of epistemological and ontological questions and taking into account the perspectives of a broad range of philosophical traditions a signo interpretational account of reality world versions other persons and self is presented Vico's New Science of Ancient Signs Jürgen Trabant, 2021-04-29 J

Novalis traces the meteoric career of one of the most striking and most strikingly misunderstood figures of German Romanticism Although Friedrich von Hardenberg better known by his pseudonym Novalis published scarcely eighty pages of writings in his lifetime his considerable fame and influence continued to spread long after his death in 1801 His posthumous reputation however was largely based on the myth manufactured by opportunistic editors as Wm Arctander O'Brien reveals in this book the first to extract Hardenberg from the distortions of history A member of the generation of the 1770s that included Hegel, Herder, and Schelling. Hardenberg was an avid follower of the French Revolution, a semiotician avant la lettre, and a prescient critic of religion. Yet in 1802, only a year after his death, the writer who had scandalized the Prussian court was marketed to a nation at war as a reactionary patriot, a sweet versifier of Idealism, and a morbid mystic. Identifying the break between Hardenberg's own early Romanticism and the late Romanticism that falsified it, Novalis shows us a writer fully engaged in revolutionary politics and examines his semiotic readings of philosophy and of the political, scientific, and religious institutions of the day. Drawing on the full range of Novalis's writings, including his poetry, notebooks, novels, and journals, O'Brien situates his semiotics between those of the eighteenth century and those of the twentieth and demonstrates the manner in which a concern for signs and language permeated all aspects of his thought. The most extensive study of Hardenberg available in English, Novalis makes this revolutionary theoretician visible for the first time. Mining a crucial chapter in the history of semiotics and social theory, it suggests fruitful, sometimes problematic, connections between semiotic, historical, deconstructive, and philological practices, as it presents a portrait of one of the most complex figures in literary history. Indispensable for scholars of German Romanticism, Novalis will also be of interest to students of comparative literature and European intellectual history.

Vlad ALEXANDRESCU, Sorana CORNEANU, ARTICLES Patrick BRISSEY Reasons for the Method in Descartes' Discours Abstract In the practical philosophy of the Discours de la Méthode, before the theoretical metaphysics of Part Four and the Méditations, Descartes gives us an inductive argument that his method, the procedure and cognitive psychology, is veracious at its inception. His evidence, akin to his Scholastic predecessors, is God, a maximally perfect being, established an ontological foundation for knowledge such that reason and nature are isomorphic. Further, the method, he tells us, is a functional definition of human reason that is like other rationalists during this period, he holds the structure of reason maps onto the world. The evidence for this thesis is given in what I call the groundwork to Descartes' philosophical system: essentially, the first half of the Discours, where through a series of examples in the preamble of Part Two, he step by step ascends from the perfection of artifacts through the imposition of reason: the Architect Example to the perfection of a constituent's use of her cognitive faculties; the Wise Lawgiver Example to God perfecting and ordering reality; the Divine Artificer Example. Finally, he descends, establishing the structure of human reason which undergirds and entails the procedure of the method: the Laws of Sparta Example. Hanoch BEN YAMI Word, Sign, and Representation in Descartes' Abstract In the first chapter of his The World, Descartes compares light to words and discusses signs and ideas. This made scholars read into that passage our views of language as a representational medium and consider it Descartes' model for representation in perception. I show by contrast that Descartes does not ascribe there any representational role to language; that to be a sign is for him to have a kind of causal role, and that he is concerned there only with the cause's lack of resemblance to its effect not with the representation's lack of resemblance to what it represents I support this interpretation by comparisons with other places in Descartes corpus and with earlier authors Descartes likely sources This interpretation may shed light both on Descartes understanding of the functioning of language and on the development of his theory of representation in perception

Osvaldo OTTAVIANI The Young Leibniz and the Ontological Argument from Rejection to Reconsideration Abstract Leibniz considered the Cartesian version of the ontological argument not as an inconsistent proof but only as an incomplete one it requires a preliminary proof of possibility to show that the concept of the most perfect being involves no contradiction Leibniz raised this objection to Descartes's proof already in 1676 then repeated it throughout his entire life Before 1676 however he suggested a more substantial objection to the Cartesian argument I take into account a text written around 1671-72 in which Leibniz considers the Cartesian proof as a paralogism and a petition of principle I argue that this criticism is modelled on Gassendi's objections to the Cartesian proof and that Leibniz's early rejection of the ontological argument has to be understood in the general context of his early philosophy which was inspired by nominalist authors such as Hobbes and Gassendi Then I take into account the reconsideration of the ontological argument in a series of texts of 1678 showing how Leibniz implicitly replies to the kind of criticism to the argument he himself shared in his earlier works

Joseph ANDERSON The Necessity of Leibniz Rejection of Necessitarianism Abstract In the Theodicy Leibniz defends the justice of God from two impious conceptions of God a God who makes arbitrary choices and a God who doesn't make choices at all Many interpret Leibniz as navigating these dangers by positing a kind of non Spinozistic necessitarianism I examine passages from the Theodicy which reject not only blind Spinozistic necessitarianism but necessitarianism altogether Leibniz thinks blind necessitarianism is dangerous due to the conception of God it entails and the implications for morality Non Spinozistic necessitarianism avoids many of these criticisms Leibniz finds that even necessary actions should receive certain rewards and punishments as long as they necessarily lead to a change in future behavior But Leibniz rejects even non Spinozistic necessitarianism on the grounds that it is inconsistent with punitive justice Whether Leibniz successfully avoids necessitarianism it ought to be clear that he sees his own position as significantly distinct from necessitarianism and not just Spinozism

The Crisis of Philosophy Michael H.

McCarthy,1990-01-01 This book presents a sympathetic yet critical treatment of the major philosophical attempts to define a viable project for philosophy in the face of historical changes McCarthy then proposes a comprehensive critical and methodological strategy of epistemic integration that fully respects the progressive and pluralistic character of contemporary science and common sense The programs of Frege Husserl Wittgenstein Carnap Sellers Dewey Quine and Rorty are carefully presented and an assessment is made of their merits and limitations This assessment results in a defense of Lonergan s integrative strategy a nuanced philosophical strategy around which a gathering center could be built McCarthy presents Lonergan s work as containing the firm outline and partial execution of a philosophical project continuous with philosophy s historic purposes and equal to the exigences of the present The book examines a broad range of seminal topics and after extended dialectical treatment of them develops a coherent account of their interdependence These topics include psychologism intentionality the limits of naturalism semantical and epistemic realism historical belonging epistemic invariance foundational analysis the limitation of logic and of the linguistic turn generalized empirical method the interdependence of mind and language the interplay of nature and history and the critical appropriation of tradition
