Heritage, Photography, and the Affective Past Colin Sterling, 2019-08-28 Heritage Photography and the Affective Past critically examines the production consumption and interpretation of photography across various heritage domains from global image archives to the domestic arena of the family album Through original ethnographic and archival research the book sheds new light on the role photography has played in the emergence expansion and articulation of heritage in diverse sociocultural contexts Drawing on wide ranging experience across the heritage sector and two international case studies Angkor in Cambodia and the town of Famagusta Cyprus the book makes a major contribution to our understanding of the role photography has played and continues to play in shaping experiences and conceptualisations of heritage One of the core aims of the book is to problematise and potentially redirect the varied usages of photography within current practice usages which remain woefully undertheorised despite their often central role in shaping heritage Ultimately by focusing attention on a hitherto underexamined aspect of the heritage phenomenon namely its manifold interconnections with photography this book provides fresh insight to the making and remaking of the past in the present and the alternative heritages that might come into being around emergent photographic forms and approaches Heritage Photography and the Affective Past uses photography as a method of enquiry as well as a tool of documentation It will be of interest to scholars and students of heritage photography anthropology museology public archaeology and tourism The book will also be a valuable resource for

Photography and the Making of the Nazi Racial Community Julie R. Keresztes,2025-01-15 Photography and the Making of the Nazi Racial Community examines the role of photography in the construction of the Nazi Volksgemeinschaft a racially exclusive community during the Third Reich Julie R Keresztes explores how the dictatorship promoted photography for those who belonged to that community and excluded Jews from the practice As Nazi officials dispossessed Jewish photographers and robbed them of their equipment studios and eventually their lives they made photography more accessible to non Jewish Germans But they inadvertently created spaces for photography to be used as resistance and revenge in concentration camps where forced laborers salvaged photographs that exposed the extermination of Europe s Jews As the victims of Nazi persecution used photography to gather evidence of the Holocaust German troops and their families used photography to portray themselves as dutiful members of the Volksgemeinschaft rather than show the reality of war and genocide Ultimately Photography and the Making of the Nazi Racial Community shows how the configuration of photography along racial lines shaped the imagery of the Second World War Published in Association with the US Holocaust Memorial Museum photography immediately became the mainstay of the commercial photographic business. It was the core money making idea behind photographic studios being established in the early 1840s. Yet very little has been written about the emergence and then the development of the commercial photography business even less about those who operated outside of the major urban centres read London and instead were based in the provinces. This is surprising since a number of these local photographers had a significant impact. Just one example the first portraits of royalty were not taken in London but in Brighton. This led to the Royal Family taking a keen interest in photography which in turn helped boost its acceptance and popularity. A second would be the work of H P Robinson working in Leamington Spa an example of his work is shown at the start of this chapter. A third would be the emergence of colour photography which was championed by a Stroud based photographer. Of equal but rarely mentioned importance is the provincial photographer's crucial role in the recording of people and places thereby providing today's permanent visual record of every aspect of daily life. Something that perhaps is taken for granted because of the ubiquitousness of the picture postcard but they possess what Roland Barthes once called the essence of photography they serve to bring the past into the present. Finally their work led to the democratisation of the photographic image a phenomenon that would impact the lives of everyone and continues to this day. Is there anyone who does not possess a photograph of themselves?

A 100 Year History of Portrait Photography and the Provincial Photographic Studio Graham Thomas,2025-10-06 Portrait

Photography and the Non-Place Jim Brogden, 2019-01-31. This book presents a critical and aesthetic defence of non place as an act of cultural reclamation. Through the restorative properties of photography it re conceptualises the cultural significance of non place. The non place is often referred to as wasteland and is usually avoided. The sites investigated in this book are located where access and ownership are often ambiguous or in dispute they are places of cultural forgetting. Drawing on the author's own photographic research led practice as well as material from photographers such as Ed Ruscha Joel Sternfeld and Richard Misrach this study employs a deliberately allusive intertextuality to offer a unique insight into the contested notions surrounding landscape representation. Ultimately it argues that the non place has the potential to reveal a version of England that raises questions about identity loss memory landscape valorisation and perhaps most importantly how we are to arrive at a more meaningful place.

Photography and Place Donna West Brett, 2015-12-07. As a recording device photography plays a unique role in how we remember places and events that happened there. This includes recording events as they happen or recording places where something occurred before the photograph was taken commonly referred to as aftermath photography. This book presents a theoretical and historical analysis of German photography of place after 1945. It analyses how major historical ruptures in twentieth century Germany and associated places of trauma memory and history affected the visual field and the circumstances of looking. These ruptures are used to generate a new reading of postwar German photography of place. The analysis includes original research on world renowned German photographers such as Thomas Struth Thomas Demand Michael Schmidt Boris Becker and Thomas Ruff as well as photographers largely

Photography, Vision, and the Production of Modern Bodies Suren Lalvani, 1996-01-01 Lalvani argues that modernity represents the powerful privileging of vision and the introduction of a paradigm of seeing that is historically distinctive Taking the introduction of photography in the nineteenth century as a crucial development in the expansion of modern vision he draws on the writings of Alan Sekula John Tagg Jonathan Crary Norman Bryson and Martin Jay to examine in a comprehensive manner how photography functioned to organize a set of relations between knowledge power and the body However in taking a broad cultural studies approach Lalvani situates the practices of photography within the larger visual order of the nineteenth century He demonstrates how the new lines of visibility formed not only by photography but by new urban spaces and new modes of transportation resulted in a particular organizing of the social order of subjectivity and social relations

At the Edge of Sight Shawn Michelle Smith, 2013 The advent of photography revolutionized perception making visible what was once impossible to see with the human eye In At the Edge of Sight Shawn Michelle Smith engages these dynamics of seeing and not seeing focusing attention as much on absence as presence on the invisible as the visible Exploring the limits of photography and vision she asks What fails to register photographically and what remains beyond the frame What is hidden by design and what is obscured by cultural blindness Smith studies manifestations of photography's brush with the unseen in her own photographic work and across the wide ranging images of early American photographers including F Holland Day Eadweard Muybridge Andrew J Russell Chansonetta Stanley Emmons and Augustus Washington She concludes by showing how concerns raised in the nineteenth century remain pertinent today in the photographs of Abu Ghraib Ultimately Smith explores the capacity of photography to reveal what remains beyond the edge of sight
