

A collage of various historical and artistic images, including a large fire, a group of people, a quilt, a landscape, and a person in a blue dress, set against a background of faint, stylized text. The collage is composed of several rectangular images of different sizes and orientations. The largest image on the left shows a massive fire with bright orange flames and thick black smoke. To its right is a smaller image of a group of people, possibly a crowd or a group of workers, in a dark, possibly underground setting. Below the fire image is a smaller image of a person in a blue dress, possibly a woman, in a dynamic pose. To the right of the quilt image is a smaller image of a landscape with a body of water and a distant shore. The quilt image itself is a grid of small, colorful squares, each containing a different pattern or design. The background of the collage is a light, textured surface with faint, stylized text, possibly a map or a document, in a light brown or tan color. The overall composition is a mix of historical and artistic elements, suggesting a theme of exploration, discovery, or a collection of various subjects.

In the more than twenty years since the publication of his book The Black Atlantic, Paul Gilroy has become a leading Afro-European intellectual whose work in the cultural studies of race has influenced a number of fields and made the study of black Atlantic literatures and cultures an enduring part of the humanities. The essays in this collection examine the full trajectory of Gilroy's work, looking beyond The Black Atlantic to consider also his work in the intervening years, focusing in particular on his investigations of contemporary black life in the United States, histories of human rights, and the politics of memory and empire in contemporary Britain. With an essay by Gilroy himself extending his longstanding examination of fascism, racial thinking, and European philosophical thought, in addition to an interview with Gilroy, this volume features Gilroy's own words alongside other scholars' alternative conceptualizations and critical rereadings of his works.      Retrieving the American Past Paul Bishop, 2007      The American History Highway: A Guide to Internet Resources on U.S., Canadian, and Latin American History Dennis A. Comblin, 2003-08-26 All roads in the church lead to humankind Pope John Paul II wrote in his first encyclical But what is it to be a human being And what vision does Christian theology offer for being and becoming human In the past theology has taken the role of the dominant ideology in a society claiming to present a complete vision of humankind and its place in creation Now Comblin argues we need to reestablish the primacy of the biblical message and tradition being lived today The Bible espouses a non idealized non individualized but realistic and communitarian view of what it means to be human This can be called the humanity of the two thirds world those whose humanity does not figure in the ideology of the privileged few As Comblin writes The privileged forget their bodies Those who have never been truly hungry do not understand that a human being is first and foremost a being who needs to eat Today it is the poor who live through their bodies and theology makes an option for the poor A new model of theology is emerging from Christian communities growing up all over the globe And yet it is an old model too that finds and takes much from the communities of the first Christians Retrieving the Human explores this new yet old vision examining questions of the new person and personhood soul and body humankind in relation to space and time the person in relation to science technology and work humanity before God It is among the poor particularly in the base communities that Comblin looks for models of being truly human today
