debates on historical and social change in Central Africa Interdisciplinary Approaches to the Future of Africa and Policy Development Tshabangu, Icarbord,2022-03-11 Despite several idealistic efforts towards a united Africa the term remains a hypothetical concept symbolizing a desired federal state on the continent While globalization and interconnectedness have brought prosperity in some parts of the world Africa has not generally benefited from global decisions These decisions policies and practices have tended to be wholly influenced by the rich and powerful countries and their transnational agencies and corporations in pursuit of their national interests Faced with such enormous external economic and political forces the divided and powerless African states have been unable to bargain for lucrative economic deals or pursue national interests for the benefit of their people hence the need to examine what exists in varied fields and the emerging trends for the future Interdisciplinary Approaches to the Future of Africa and Policy Development addresses critical issues and challenges in Africa and seeks to examine and understand the future trends in Africa through a deconstructive interrogation of present trends Covering a wide range of topics such as sustainability equality and democracy it is ideal for researchers academicians students economists policymakers political parties trade unions and NGOs Settlement Ecology Glenn Davis Stone,2022-11-08 What determines agrarian settlement patterns Glenn Davis Stone addresses this question by analyzing the spatial aspects of agrarian ecology the relationship between how farmers farm and where they settle and how farming and settlement change as population density rises Crosscutting the fields of cultural anthropology archaeology geography and agricultural economics Settlement Ecology presents a new perspective on the process of agricultural intensification and explores the relationships between intensification and settlement decision making Stone insists that paleotechnic traditional agriculture must be seen as a social process with the social organization of agricultural work playing a key role in shaping settlement characteristics These relationships are demonstrated in a richly documented case study of the Kofyar who have been settling a frontier in the Nigerian savanna The history of agricultural change and the development of the settlement pattern are reconstructed through ethnography archival research and aerial photos and are analyzed using innovative graphical methods Stone also reflects on the limits of ecological determination of settlement comparing the farming and settlement trajectories of the Kofyar and Tiv on the same frontier "The smell of Ujamaa is still there" Daniel Mann,2017-12-04 Fifty years after the Arusha Declaration this book sets out to reevaluate one of the most important roots of Tanzania s Ujamaa Socialism The Ruvuma Development Association Based on a basic democratic movement of young politicized farmers this organization not only brought together up to 18 cooperative villages in southwestern Tanzania it also became the inspiration for President Nyerere to put his vision of a modern socialist society built on the image of the traditional extended family into a concrete development model on national scale Led by a participative understanding of empirical research this explorative study has analyzed the local history of Ujamaa in three case study villages within Ruvuma Through employing a mix of expert and narrative interviews as well as group interviews and villager questionnaires the study sheds new light on the local perceptions of Ujamaa history and communal development as well as on the interrelations between local and national scale on Tanzania's path of development. It identifies the recent farmers groups vikundi as some of the most important heirs to the Nation's socialist ideology and concludes that in many aspects the smell of Ujamaa is still there.

Disposable Cities Garth Andrew Myers, 2017-03-02. Based on in-depth fieldwork in three cities: Dar es Salaam, Zanzibar and Lusaka, this book provides a critical analysis of the United Nations Sustainable Cities Program in Africa. Focusing on the SCP's policies for solid waste management, which was identified as the top priority problem by the SCP, the book examines the success of these pilot schemes and the SCP's record in building new relationships between people and government. It argues that the SCP has operated in a political vacuum without recognition of the long and problematic histories and cultural politics of urban environmental governance in Eastern and Southern Africa. This book brings these cultural and political histories to the fore in its examination of the contemporary dynamics. In doing so, it not only provides an insightful analysis of the policies and outcomes for the SCP but also puts forward a historically grounded critique of neoliberalism, good governance and sustainable development discourses.

only role of agriculture the international contributors to this volume detail how the solution to agricultural problems can lead to general socioeconomic and political development in impoverished countries The Winds of History Andreas Zeman,2023-10-24 Based on extensive archival research in six countries and intensive fieldwork the book analyzes the history of the village of Nkhlongue on the eastern Mozambican shores of Lake Malawi from the time of its formation in the 19th century to the present day The study uses Nkhlongue as a microhistorical lens to examine such diverse topics as the slave trade the spread of Islam colonization subsistence production counter insurgency decolonization civil war ecotourism and matriliney Thereby the book attempts to reflect as much as possible on the generalizability and global comparability of local findings by framing analyses in historiographical discussions that aim to go beyond the regional or national level. Although the chapters of the book deal with very different topics they are united by a common interest in the social history of rural Africa in the longue dur e. Contrary to persistent clich s of rural inertia in Africa the book as a whole underscores the profound changeability of social conditions and relations in Nkhlongue over the years and highlights how people s room for maneuver kept changing as a result of the Winds of History the frequent and often violent ruptures brought to the village from outside.
