Interpreting China's Military Power Ka Po Ng,2005-08-09 Although inter state tensions have generally been easing after the Cold War military power remains a dominant factor in Asian regional politics As China operating the world s largest army grows stronger there are ongoing debates over the implications for Asia s regional security This book argues that it is imperative to look beyond the empirical observations and conventional materialist reading of Chinese military development to understand its dynamics and directions in doctrinal terms and put it in a readiness context for evaluation Military doctrine has long been under studied and is often treated as a subject separate from force development But as this study contends this factor is necessary for interpreting the making and purposes of China s military power because it forms the intellectual foundation of military structural and hardware development When loaded with political rhetoric it also communicates to us the intended uses of the military power The role of doctrine is reinforced in the context of military readiness which defines what for and how the army is getting ready Force development is evaluated in structural operational and directional terms The importance of this analytical framework based on military doctrine and readiness is demonstrated in a survey of the evolution of Chinese military doctrine and force development As the Chinese People s Liberation Army has continued to adjust its military structure and operation to follow the doctrinal lead its switches between the doctrines of local war and total war have seen corresponding changes to the emphasis between operational and structural readiness Architects of

Continental Seapower Jeremy Stocker,2020-10-01 This book describes and analyses two iconic figures in twentieth century naval history the German Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz and the Russian Admiral Sergei Gorshkov It examines the men what they thought and wrote about seapower the fleets they created and the strategic consequences of what they did More broadly it draws on the respective histories of the post 1897 Imperial German Navy and the post 1956 Soviet Navy to examine the continental bid for large scale seapower The work argues that both individuals built navies that did not and could not fulfil the objectives for which they were created Drawing on the legacies of both men the book also develops some wider ideas about the creation of large navies by continental states with cautionary lessons for today s emerging powers India and China Both admirals have received book length biographies but this is the first attempt at a comparative study and the first to draw broader strategic lessons from their respective attempts as continental navalists to challenge maritime states This book will be of much interest to students of naval history strategic studies and International Relations Special Bibliography

Charles Desch,2001 Nonoffensive Defence David Gates,1991-06-18 Throughout the 1980s numerous calls were made for Nato to change its strategy to one in which nuclear weapons played either a much smaller role or none at all Among proposed alternatives were several so called defensive strategies This book examines these alternatives Soldiers in

Cities: Military Operations on Urban Terrain , A Long Goodbye Artemy M. Kalinovsky,2011-09-05 Why did the USSR linger so long in Afghanistan What makes this account of the Soviet Afghan conflict both timely and important is its focus on the factors that prevented the Soviet leadership from ending a demoralizing and costly war and on the long term consequences for the Soviet Union and the region Soviet Military Power In A Changing World Susan L Clark,2019-06-04

Many people have been instrumental in helping see this book through to completion First I want to thank Robbin Laird not only for his professional encouragement over the years but especially for his suggestion to do this book in the first place Nor would this effort have been possible or nearly as enjoyable without the support and friendship of Susan McEachern I would also like to thank Jackie Evans for her assistance in helping to prepare the manuscript

The French Defence Debate R. Utley, 2000-08-22 The French Defence Debate examines assertions of consensus and continuity in and surrounding France's defence since 1958 with primary reference to the political career of François Mitterrand Mitterrand's influence over defence and security before and after his election to the presidency is often underestimated Nonetheless his impact was substantial if ultimately for his lack of concern to preserve consensus and his reluctance to instigate necessary changes in France's defence despite the end of the Cold War and the military deficiencies and limitations of national independence it exposed
