Health, and Healing in African American Life Stephanie Y. Mitchem, Emilie M. Townes, 2008-08-30 Black Americans are more likely than Whites to die of cancer and heart disease more likely to get diabetes and asthma and less likely to get preventive care and screening Some of this greater morbidity results from education income level and environment as well as access to health care But the traditional medical model does not always allow for a more holistic approach that takes into account the body the mind the spirit the family and the community This book offers a better understanding of the varieties of religiously based approaches to healing and alternative models of healing and health found in Black communities in the United States Contributors address the communal aspects of faith and health and explore the contexts in which individuals make choices about their health the roles that institutions play in shaping these decisions and the practices individuals engage in seeking better health or coping with the health they have By paying attention to the role of faith spirit and health this book offers a fuller sense of the varieties of ways Black health and health care are perceived and addressed from an inter religious perspective Community and religion based initiatives have emerged as one key way to address the health challenges found in the African American community In cities such as Atlanta Baltimore Dallas and Oakland residents organize exercise groups teach one another how to cook with healthy ingredients and encourage neighbors to get regular checkups Churches have become key sites for health education screening and testing Another set of responses to the challenge of Black health and healthcare in the United States comes from those who emphasize the body as a whole body mind soul and spirit often drawing on religious traditions such as Islam and African based religions such as Spiritism Santeria Vodun aka Voodoo Candomblé and others Understanding the issues and the various approaches is essential to combating the problems and this unique volume sheds light on areas often overlooked when considering the issues

Culture and Difference Antonia Darder, 1995-12-30 The yearning to remember who we are is not easily detected in the qualitative dimensions of focus groups and ethnographic research methods nor is it easily measured in standard quantified scientific inquiry It is deeply rooted obscured by layer upon layer of human efforts to survive the impact of historical amnesia induced by the dominant policies and practices of advanced capitalism and postmodern culture Darder's introduction sets the tone by describing the formation of Warriors for Gringostroika and The New Mestizas In the words of Anzaldúa those who

Understanding African American Rhetoric Ronald L. Jackson II,Elaine B. Richardson,2014-05-22 This is an extraordinarily well balanced collection of essays focused on varied expressions of African American Rhetoric it also is a critical antidote to a preoccupation with Western Rhetoric as the arbiter of what counts for effective rhetoric Rather than impose Western terminology on African and African American rhetoric the essays in this volume seek to illumine rhetoric from within its own cultural expression thereby creating an understanding grounded in the culture s values The consequence is a richly detailed and well researched set of essays The contribution of African American rhetoric can no longer be rendered invisible through neglect of its tradition The essays in this volume neither seek to displace Western Rhetoric nor function as an uncritical paen to Afrocentricity and Africology This volume is both timely and essential timely in advancing a better understanding of the richly textured history that is expressed through African American discourse and essential as a counterpoint to the hegemonic influence of Greek and Roman rhetoric as the origin of rhetorical theory and practice Written in the spirit of a critical rhetoric this collection eschews traditional focus on public address and instead offers a rich array of texts in musical and other forms that address publics
