Abandonment: Absolute Surrender to Divine Providence Jean Pierre de Caussade,2020-09-28 There is no truth however clear which does not become error the moment it is lessened or exaggerated and there is no food however salutary for the soul which may not when ill applied become a fatal poison The virtue of abandonment does not escape this danger the more holy and profitable it is in itself the more serious are the dangers we risk by misunderstanding its just limits These dangers unfortunately are not mere possibilities The seventeenth century witnessed the birth of a heresy that of the Quietists which while claiming to teach its followers perfect abandonment to God led them into the most terrible disorders For a time this sect wrought its ravages in the very capital of Catholicism and put forth such specious sophistries that the pious F nelon himself while abhorring the practical consequences drawn from this teaching was for a time misled by its false appearance of perfection To preserve Father Caussade s readers from these dangers we think it well to add to these writings a succinct exposition of the rules which should guide us in a matter so delicate By the light of the principles jointly furnished us by reason and faith we shall have no difficulty in determining the just limits which should mark our abandonment to divine Providence and it will be easy for us afterwards to elucidate the points in our author s doctrine which might be wrongly interpreted Father Caussade explains very clearly in his Letters the two principles which form the unalterable basis of the virtue of abandonment First principle Nothing is done nothing happens either in the material or in the moral world which God has not foreseen from all eternity and which He has not willed or at least permitted Second principle God can will nothing He can permit nothing but in view of the end He proposed to Himself in creating the world i e in view of His glory and the glory of the Man God Jesus Christ His only Son To these two principles laid down by our author we shall add a third which will complete the elucidation of this whole subject As long as man lives upon earth God desires to be glorified through the happiness of this privileged creature and consequently in God's designs the interest of man's sanctification and happiness is inseparable from the interest of the divine glory. If we do not lose sight of these principles which no Christian can question we shall understand that our confidence in the Providence of our Father in heaven cannot be too great, too absolute, too childlike. If nothing but what He permits happens and if He can permit nothing but what is for our happiness then we have nothing to fear except not being sufficiently submissive to God. As long as we keep ourselves united with Him and we walk after His designs were all creatures to turn against us they could not harm us. He who relies upon God becomes by this very reliance as powerful and as invincible as God and created powers can no more prevail against him than against God Himself. This confidence in the fatherly providence of God cannot evidently dispense us from doing all that is in our power to accomplish His designs but after having done all that depends upon our efforts we will abandon ourselves completely to God for the rest. This abandonment should extend in fact to everything to the past to the present to the future to the body and all its conditions to the soul and all its miseries as well as all its qualities to blessings to afflictions to the good will of men and to their malice to the vicissitudes of the material and the revolutions of the moral world to life and to death to time and to eternity. However as these different orders of things do not enter in the same manner in the designs of divine Providence neither should our abandonment in regard to these be practised in the same manner and the rules which we should follow in the practice of this virtue should be founded on the nature itself of the objects which call it forth. We shall indicate the principal ones.

Abandonment to Divine Providence Jean-Pierre De Caussade, 2011-09-06. God is to be found in the simplest of our daily activities and especially through total surrender to whatever is His will for each of us. That is the message of this 18th century inspirational classic by Jean Pierre de Caussade. Its encouragement to live in the present moment accepting everyday obstacles with faith, humility and love has guided generations of believers to holiness and spiritual peace. This special volume of the famous spiritual treatise also includes the many insightful letters of Father de Caussade on the practice of self abandonment. These numerous letters provide a great additional source of wisdom and practical guidance for how to grow in abandonment and to deepen our union with God in our daily lives. De Caussade shows that this practice of self abandonment to God's will is the key to attaining true peace and virtue and that it is readily available to all people from beginners to those well advanced in the spiritual life. He also shows how to determine what God's will is for us. He reveals that it is not extraordinary feats that God expects for our growth in holiness but rather heroic attention to every detail in our lives and humble acceptance of our daily lot in life as coming from His hand. The rich spiritual lessons in this book have stood the test of time offering real and practical assistance to all people because its message is simple and clear one that the reader will find to be a rare treasure of inspiration and direction to be referred to again and again.
