Self And Future Generations An Intercultural Conversation Between East And West:

Living for the Future Rachel Muers, 2011-10-27 Our relationship to future generations raises fundamental issues for ethical thought to which a Christian theological response is both possible and significant. A relationship to future generations is implicitly central to many of today's most public controversies over environmental protection, genetic research and the purpose of education to name but a few, but it has received little explicit or extended consideration. In Living for the Future Rachel Muers argues and seeks to demonstrate that to consider future generations as ethically significant is not simply to extend an existing ethical framework but to rethink how ethics is done. Doing intergenerationally responsible theology and ethics means paying attention to how people are formed as theological and ethical reasoners, reasoners about the good, how social practices of deliberation about the good are maintained and developed, and how all of this relates to an understanding of the world as the sphere of God's transforming action. In other words, an intergenerationally responsible theological ethics will pay attention to the ethics and the spirituality of ethics itself. Her account of the ethical relation to future generations centres on three key concepts: choosing life (see Deut 30:19), keeping the sources open and sustaining fruitful contexts. These concepts are developed theologically and in engagement with extra-theological conversations on intergenerational responsibility. She shows how they take up and move beyond concerns expressed in those conversations for survival, for the right distribution of resources and for the maintenance of human values. Kim, Ross Harrison, 1999 This study reveals how human attitudes to the long-term effects of their actions are crucially bound up with their ideas of personal identity. This collection of essays contrasts eastern and western philosophies of concern for the future and offers some suggestions for their possible reconciliation. The Non-Identity Problem and the Ethics of

Future People David Boonin, 2014-10-16 David Boonin presents a new account of the non-identity problem, a puzzle about our obligations to people who do not yet exist. Our actions sometimes have an effect not only on the quality of life that people will enjoy in the future but on which particular people will exist in the future to enjoy it. In cases where this is so, the combination of certain assumptions that most people seem to accept can yield conclusions that most people seem to reject. The non-identity problem has important implications both for ethical theory and for a number of topics in applied ethics, including controversial issues in bioethics, environmental ethics and disability ethics. It has been the subject of a great deal of discussion for nearly four decades, but this is the first book-length study devoted exclusively to its examination. Boonin begins by explaining what the problem is, why the problem matters, and what criteria a solution to the problem must satisfy in order to count as a successful one. He then provides a critical survey of the solutions to the problem that have thus far been proposed in the sizeable literature that the problem has generated and concludes by developing and defending an unorthodox alternative solution, one that differs fundamentally from virtually every other available approach. The Spirit of Sustainability Willis Jenkins, Whitney Bauman, 2009-11-01 The Spirit of Sustainability helps readers navigate the moral worlds and ethical concepts and social and religious practices related to sustainability In collaboration with the Forum on Religion and Ecology an established network of leading scholars it explores a wide range of topics and perspectives from the promise and problems of approaching sustainability through global and indigenous religions to major theories in philosophy and environmental ethics and professional practices and social movements This volume presents the various goals of sustainability ecological integrity economic health human dignity fairness to the future and social justice and provides a framework for reasoning through many interrelated environmental challenges for both current and future generations

Awards Innovator Award for Outstanding Edited Collection Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity Caucus Central States Communication Association 2023 Outstanding Book in Performance Studies and Autoethnography Performance Studies and Autoethnography Division Central States Communication Association 2023 Book of the Year Gay Lesbian Bisexual Transgender and Queer Communication Studies Division National Communication Association 2022 Book of the Year Ethnography Division National Communication Association 2020 Gender Futurity Intersectional Autoethnography showcases a collection of narrative and autoethnographic research that unpacks the complexity of gender at its intersections i.e. by ability race sexuality religion beauty geography spatiality community performance politics socio economic status education and many other markers of difference. The book focuses on gender as it is lived, chaperoned and chaperones other social identity categories. It tells stories that reveal problematic gender binaries promising gender futures and everything in between; they ask us to rethink what we assume to be true, real and normal about gender identity and expression. Each essay written by both gender variant and cisgender scholars explores cultural phenomena that create space for us to reimagine, rethink and create new ways of being. This book will be useful for undergraduate, postgraduate and professional degree students particularly in the fields of gender studies, qualitative methods and communication theory. Intercultural Communication for Everyday Life John R. Baldwin, Alberto González, Nettie Brock, Ming Xie, Chin-Chung Chao, 2023-10-09. INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION FOR EVERYDAY LIFE. Face the global challenges of the future with this accessible introduction to communication across boundaries. Communication between cultures can be challenging in a number of ways but it also carries immense potential rewards. In an increasingly connected world it has never been more important to communicate across a range of differences created by history and circumstance. Contributing to global communities and rising to meet crucial shared challenges, human rights disputes, refugee crises, the international climate crisis depends in the first instance on a sound communicative foundation. Intercultural Communication for Everyday Life provides a thorough introduction to this vital subject for students encountering it for the first time. Built around a robust and multifaceted definition of culture which goes far beyond simple delineation of national boundaries, it offers an understanding of its subject that transcends US centrality. The result, updated to reflect dramatic ongoing changes to the interconnected world, is essential.

for students of cross cultural communication and exchange Readers of the second edition of Intercultural Communication for Everyday Life readers will also find Accessible definitions of core concepts Revised and updated chapters reflecting the COVID 19 crisis climate change challenges and more An all new chapter on social media as a tool for intercultural communication Intercultural Communication for Everyday Life is essential for students and other readers seeking a foundational overview of this subject
