Achievement and Failure in Portuguese and Spanish Speaking Countries Edgar Galindo, Adelinda A.

Candeias, Heldemerina S. Pires, Miguel Ángel Carbonero, 2018-08-31 This book is devoted to an increasingly important educational problem in the modern societies school achievement and failure School failure is presently a problem in developed as well as in developing countries In the Spanish and Portuguese speaking countries in Europe and Latin America school achievement and failure is consequently an important topic of political social and scientific discussion The following papers revise the latest research in the field from the perspective of Psychology Noncognitive psychological processes and academic achievement Jihyun Lee, Lazar Stankov, 2017-10-02 It is becoming increasingly clear that non cognitive psychological processes are important for students school achievement even to the point where their influence may be stronger than that exerted by the parents teachers or the school atmosphere itself Non cognitive psychological variables refer to varieties of self beliefs and goal orientations such as anxiety confidence self efficacy and self concept which are often seen as dispositional and motivational in nature It is particularly important to highlight the role that confidence and self efficacy play in school achievement as these two self beliefs are related to metacognitive processing the awareness of what you know and what you do not know Self concept meanwhile tends to exert its influence on an individual s choice of tertiary level courses This book suggests that by focusing on students self beliefs the education system may be in a position to improve cognitive performance since individual students self beliefs may be more malleable than the cognitive processes involved in acquiring academic knowledge Focusing on these non cognitive psychological processes is also likely to be more effective in improving performance than system wide interventions involving changes in policy for both public and private sector educators This book will be useful to educational researchers school leaders administrators counsellors and teachers in guiding students attitudes towards learning and school performance It will also provide students in psychology and education with broad and nuanced insights into the drivers of school achievement This book was originally published as a special issue of Educational Psychology

Dirkswager,Amy Junge,2013 Lately our nation s strategy for improving our schools is mostly limited to getting tough with teachers Blaming teachers for poor outcomes we spend almost all of our energy trying to control teachers behavior and school operations But what if all of this is exactly the opposite of what is needed What if teachers are the answer and not the problem What if trusting teachers and not controlling them is the key to school success Examining the experiences of teachers who are already trusted to call the shots this book answers What would teachers do if they had the autonomy not just to make classroom decisions but to collectively with their colleagues make the decisions influencing whole school success Decisions such as school curriculum how to allocate the school budget and whom to hire Teachers with decision making authority create the schools that many of us profess to want They individualize learning Their students are active not passive learners who gain academic and life skills The teachers create school cultures that are the same as those in high performing organizations They accept accountability and innovate and make efficient use of resources These promising results suggest it s time to trust teachers Motivation for Achievement M.
