Preventing Childhood Asthma: the Neglected Impact of Existing Public Health Interventions David Michael Patrick, Stuart Turvey, Meghan B. Azad, Petra Zimmermann, Angela Dramowski, Hannah Lishman, 2025-06-10

Increasing evidence mainly in high income settings where data are often more readily available is showing that antibiotic exposure in early life increases the risk of developing asthma and other allergic conditions likely due to disturbances in the infant's gut microbiome during a foundational time of immunological development thereby predisposing the infant to hyperreactive immunological responses The method of infant feeding in these first few months of life is a crucial factor to consider as early evidence shows not only that breastmilk is optimal for growth lung development and passive immunological protection it also can act to restore healthy microbial growth in the infant's gut potentially reversing the risk of atopic disease While indoor and outdoor air pollution is a known trigger for asthmatic episodes in children its role extends to also disrupting the gut microbiome in the first months of life predisposing infants to asthma and allergy later in childhood Strong antibiotic stewardship promotion of and support for breastfeeding and improved air quality inside and outside of the home are each vital public health efforts in and of themselves to reduce the urgent problem of antibiotic resistance promote healthy development and immunological protection in children and reduce respiratory and cardiovascular disease in the general population respectively However the additional benefit that they could confer in infants by protecting a healthy and diverse gut microbiome could contribute to reversing the asthma and allergy epidemic seen globally in the last several decades This reversal is starting to be seen in high income settings however the causal link is not conclusive and more research in animal models and at the population level needs to be done to understand these complex and interplaying early determinants of health The context specific challenges related to settings where antibiotic stewardship is less apparent breastfeeding is not well supported and or air quality is poor need to be understood And the policy and cost implications of realizing a potentially enormous additional benefit to existing public health programs need to be analyzed in order to make the case for public health investment where it will be most meaningful Embodiment and Agency Sue Campbell, Letitia Maynell, 2010-11-01

Cardiovascular and Physical Health in Severe Mental Illness Margaret K. Hahn, Ganesan Venkatasubramanian, Anthony Christopher Vernon, Sri Mahavir Agarwal, 2021-11-25 High-Resolution Mass Spectroscopy for Phytochemical Analysis Sreeraj Gopi, Augustine Amalraj, Shintu Jude, 2021-09-30 This new volume provides a bird's eye view of the properties, utilization and importance of high resolution mass spectrometry HRMS for phytochemical analysis. The book discusses the new and state of the art technologies related to HRMS in phytochemical analysis for the food industry in a comprehensive manner. Phytochemical characterization of plants is important in the food and nutraceutical industries and is also necessary in the procedures followed for drug development, toxicology, determination, forensic studies, origin verification, quality assurance etc. Easy determination of active compounds and isolation as well as purification of the same from natural matrices are required and the possibilities and advantages of HRMS pave the way for improved analysis patterns in phytochemistry. This book is unique in that its sole consideration is on the importance of HRMS in the field of phytochemical analysis. Along with an overview of basic instrumental information, the volume provides a detailed account of data processing and dereplication strategies. Technologies such as bioanalytical techniques and bioassays are considered also to provide support for the functions of the instruments used. In addition, a case study is presented to depict the complete phytochemical characterization of a matrix by HRMS. The book covers processing and computational techniques, dereplication, hyphenation, high resolution bioassays, bioanalytical screening, purification techniques, applications of gas chromatography, high resolution mass spectrometry and more. Key features: Covers the fundamental instrumentation and techniques. Discusses HRMS based phytochemical research details. Focuses strictly on the phytochemical considerations. Travelling Ideas in the Long Nineteenth Century Petra Broomans, Janke Klok, 2019-11-19 Travelling Ideas in the Long Nineteenth Century is about how ideas travel on the waves of cultural transfer. The volume focuses in particular on the exchange of ideas, knowledge and culture between the Nordic countries and continental Europe. It includes reflections on travelling and transmitting ideas through various forms and takes a step further in scrutinising how new theories in literary, cultural and historical studies as well as new methods are influencing research in the field of cultural transfer and transmission. In the first part of the volume, the authors examine the export and import of ideas through literature, in translation, travel letters, international education strategies and the establishment of artists' colonies. Attention is paid to how writers, artists and cultural transmitters used their cross border mobility in transferring ideas and how they were connected to each other in new contact zones The second part is dedicated to new research approaches such as the use of digital instruments and research on the strategies and politics behind translated literature Here translation bibliographies and the bibliographical data of national libraries which today are often accessible in digital form come under scrutiny These sources are valuable objects of study in the mining of translation flows
