When I Waked, I Cried To Dream Again A. Van Jordan, 2023-06-06 Winner of the 2024 Hurston Wright Legacy Award A. Van Jordan is one of the most capacious deep structural imaginations in American poetry today. Linda Gregerson A dynamic moving hybrid work that celebrates Black youth often too fleeting and examines Black lives lost to police violence. In this astonishing volume of poems and lyric prose Whiting Award winner A. Van Jordan draws comparisons to Black characters in Shakespearean plays Caliban and Sycorax from The Tempest Aaron the Moor from Titus Andronicus and the eponymous antihero of Othello to mourn the deaths of Black people particularly Black children at the hands of police officers. What do these characters and the ways they are defined by the white figures who surround them have in common with Tamir Rice Trayvon Martin and other Black people killed in the twenty-first century. Balancing anger and grief with celebration Jordan employs an elastic variety of poetic forms including ekphrastic sestinas inspired by the photography of Malick Sidibé fictional dialogues and his signature definition poems that break down the insidious power of words like fair suspect and juvenile. He invents a new form of window poems based on a characterization exercise to see Shakespeare's Black characters in three dimensions and finds contemporary parallels in the way these characters are othered rendered at once undesirable and hypersexualized a threat and a joke. At once a stunning inquiry into the roots of racist violence and a moving recognition of the joy of Black youth before the world takes hold When I Waked I Cried to Dream Again expresses the preciousness and precarity of life.

Imaging Culture Candace M. Keller, 2021-07-06 Imaging Culture is a sociohistorical study of the meaning function and aesthetic significance of photography in Mali West Africa from the 1930s to the present. Spanning the dynamic periods of colonialism national independence socialism and democracy its analysis focuses on the studio and documentary work of professional urban photographers particularly in the capital city of Bamako and in smaller cities such as Mopti and Ségou. Featuring the work of more than twenty-five photographers it concentrates on those who have been particularly influential for the local development and practice of the medium as well as its international popularization and active participation in the contemporary art market. Imaging Culture looks at how local aesthetic ideas are visually communicated in the photographers' art and argues that though these aesthetic arrangements have specific relevance for local consumers they transcend geographical and cultural boundaries to have value for contemporary global audiences as well. Imaging Culture is an important and visually interesting book which will become a standard source for those who study African photography and its global impact.

Malick Sidibé Malick Sidibé, André Magnin, 1998 Sidibé's genre pictures group portraits images of couples in love of sexy young men women express pure joy of life.

You Look Beautiful Like that Michelle Lamunière, Seydou Keita, Malick Sidibé, 2001 Seydou Keita and Malick Sidibé two commercial photographers from Mali took mesmerizing portraits in Bamako the capital during the period before and after the country achieved independence from France in 1960. This book presents a range of these portraits as well as excerpts from recent interviews with the artists and an essay placing their work in the context of the history of portrait photography in West Africa since its beginnings in the 1840s. These photographs are the work of Africans controlling the camera to create images of African subjects for an African audience. For both photographers the studio was a theater in which to coordinate costumes, lighting, props and poses to help the subjects define themselves. Keita adapted the formulas of portrait photography to make unique images that reflect both his clients' social identity within the community and their enthusiastic embrace of modernity. Later, as portrait conventions and societal roles became more flexible, Sidibe's subjects took an even more active part in constructing the images they wanted to convey. In Bambara, the language widely spoken in Mali, there is an expression i ka nye tan which means 'you look beautiful like that'. Keita's and Sidibe's portraits flatter the sitters, presenting them in the best possible light.

Embodying Relation Allison Moore, 2020-06-22. In Embodying Relation Allison Moore examines the tensions between the local and the global in the art photography movement in Bamako, Mali, which blossomed in the 1990s after Malian photographers Seydou Keita and Malick Sidibé became internationally famous and the Bamako Photography Biennale was founded. Moore traces the trajectory of Malian photography from the 1880s when photography first arrived as an apparatus of French colonialism to the first African studio practitioners of the 1930s and the establishment in 1994 of the Bamako Biennale, Africa's most important continent-wide photographic exhibition. In her detailed discussion of Bamako's artistic aesthetics and institutions, Moore examines the post-fame careers of Keita and Sidibé, the biennale's structure, the rise of women photographers, cultural preservation through photography, and how Mali's shift to democracy in the early 1990s enabled Bamako's art scene to flourish. Moore shows how Malian photographers focus on cultural exchange, affective connections with different publics, and merging of traditional cultural precepts with modern notions of art. Moore embodies Caribbean philosopher and poet Édouard Glissant's notion of relation in ways that spark new artistic forms, practices, and communities.

Mali twist André Magnin, Brigitte Ollier, 2017-10-19. Malick Sidibé Mali Twist se présente comme l'ouvrage monographique le plus complet consacré à Malick Sidibé (1935-2016). Il est un véritable hommage à l'un des plus importants photographes contemporains.
