Authentic Professional Learning Ann Webster-Wright,2010-08-05 There is considerable and growing interest in professionals learning across their working lives The growth in this interest is likely premised upon the increasing percentage of those who are being employed under the designation as professi als or para professional workers in advanced industrial economies Part of being designated in this way is a requirement to be able to work autonomously and in a relatively self regulated manner Of course many other kinds of employment also demand such behaviours However there is particular attention being given to the ongoing development of workers who are seen to make crucial decisions and take actions about health legal and nancial matters Part of this attention derives from expectations within the community that those who are granted relative autonomy and are often paid handsomely should be current and informed in their decisi making Then like all other workers professionals are required to maintain their competence in the face of changing requirements for work Consequently a volume that seeks to inform how best this ongoing learning can be understood supported and assisted is most timely and welcomed This volume seeks to elaborate professional learning through a consideration of the concept of authentic professional learning What is proposed here is that in contrast to programmatic approaches towards professional development the process of continuing professional learning is a personal complex and diverse process that does not lend itself to easy prescription or the realisation of others intents

Sociology and Social Research (RLE Social Theory) Geoff Payne,Robert Dingwall,Judy Payne,Mick Carter,2014-08-21 A social science which has become so remote from the society which pays for its upkeep is ultimately doomed threatened less by repression than by intellectual contempt and financial neglect This is the message of the authors of this book in this reassessment of the evolution and present state of British sociology Their investigation analyses the discipline as a social institution whose product is inexorably shaped by the everyday circumstances of its producers it is the concrete outcome of people s work rather than a body of abstract ideas Drawing upon their varied experience as teachers and researchers they identify three major trends in contemporary sociology First that the discipline s rapid expansion has led to a retreat from rigorous research into Utopian and introspective theorising Second that the concept of sociological research is being taught in a totally false way because of this and encourages research within a wholly academic environment Third that the current unpopularity of sociology with academics prospective students and politicians is no coincidence but a reflection of the conditions under which sociology is now produced and practised In Sociology and Social Research the authors suggest substantial changes in sociological research the way in which it is carried out and the conditions under which it is undertaken Their book is a timely warning to fellow sociologists when the profession is under attack as a result of public expenditure cuts
