Therefore it is difficult to make global statements about a teaching sequence. However, methods that aim at a global assessment of teaching have often been used in indicator-based lesson observation. It remains unclear how reliable global assessments of entire lesson sequences are since no statements can be made about dynamic processes taking place. One approach is the State Space Grids (SSG) developed by Hollenstein (2013). These make it possible to relate the development of two teaching characteristics to each other over time to visualize dynamic processes. However, there is no suitable way to numerically capture the relationship between indicators, e.g. to compare such moment-to-moment assessments with global assessments. The aim of this work is therefore to extend the SSG approach to Advanced State Space Grids with mathematically based parameters to test their practicability to compare them with global assessments of entire teaching sequences and to investigate their applicability to physics teaching. Numerical and graphical elements are added to the SSG plot. These include new relation types between the recorded indicators, chi-square tests and parameters for densities and deviations.

Merton Book Award, this is awarded annually in recognition of an outstanding book on science knowledge and/or technology. Video data is transforming the possibilities of social science research. Whether through mobile phone footage, body-worn cameras or public video surveillance, we have access to an ever-expanding pool of data on real-life situations and interactions. This book provides a flexible framework for working with video data and understanding what it says about social life. With examples from a range of real video research projects, the book showcases step-by-step how to analyse any kind of data, including both found and generated videos. It also includes a non-technical discussion of computer vision and its opportunities for social science research. With this book, you will be able to complete each step of the research process fully and efficiently, from data collection to management, analysis and interpretation. Use video data in an ethical and effective way to maximise its impact. Utilise contemporary technology and accessible platforms such as YouTube, Twitter, TikTok and Facebook. This book is an ideal toolkit for researchers or postgraduate students across the social sciences working with video data as a part of their research projects. Accessible and practical, it is written for qualitative and quantitative researchers, newcomers and experienced scholars. Features include interactive activities for different skill levels and what to read next, sections to help you engage further with the research mentioned in the book.

Teaching Chemistry - A Studybook Ingo Eilks, Avi Hofstein, 2013-04-20

This book focuses on developing and updating prospective and practicing chemistry teachers pedagogical content knowledge. The 11 chapters of the book discuss the most essential theories from general and science education and in the second part of each of the chapters apply the theory to examples from the chemistry classroom. Key sentences, tasks for self assessment and suggestions for further reading are also included. The book is focused on many different issues a teacher of chemistry is concerned with. The chapters provide contemporary discussions of the chemistry curriculum, objectives and assessment, motivation, learning difficulties, linguistic issues, practical work, student active pedagogies, ICT, informal learning, continuous professional development and teaching chemistry in developing environments. This book with contributions from many of the world's top experts in chemistry education is a major publication offering something that has not previously been available. Within this single volume chemistry teachers, teacher educators and prospective teachers will find information and advice relating to key issues in teaching such as the curriculum, assessment and so forth but contextualised in terms of the specifics of teaching and learning of chemistry and drawing upon the extensive research in the field. Moreover, the book is written in a scholarly style with extensive citations to the literature thus providing an excellent starting point for teachers and research students undertaking scholarly studies in chemistry education whilst at the same time offering insight and practical advice to support the planning of effective chemistry teaching. This book should be considered essential reading for those preparing for chemistry teaching and will be an important addition to the libraries of all concerned with chemical education. Dr Keith S. Taber, University of Cambridge, Editor, Chemistry Education Research and Practice. The highly regarded collection of authors in this book fills a critical void by providing an essential resource for teachers of chemistry to enhance pedagogical content knowledge for teaching modern chemistry. Through clever orchestration of examples and theory and with carefully framed guiding questions, the book equips teachers to act on the relevance of essential chemistry knowledge to navigate such challenges as context, motivation to learn, thinking, activity, language, assessment and maintaining professional expertise. If you are a secondary or post secondary teacher of chemistry, this book will quickly become a favorite, well thumbed resource. Professor Hannah Sevan, University of Massachusetts Boston.
