Making the Grade Barb Owen, 2021-07-23 In the early 1900s a student with two years of high school could attend Ellensburg Normal School for one academic year pass an examination and receive a teaching certificate Elsie Hodgson did just that In response to her application the clerk of the Tarpiscan School wrote You can teach our school Sharpen up your six shooter we got some ornery kids in these parts Ready for adventure she accepted the offer and found kind hospitable people who treated her with respect and affection In Making the Grade thirteen former Kittitas country schoolmarms reflect fondly on their days of teaching in remote locales between 1914 and 1939 Usually their classes were small with multiple grade levels in a single room and the new educators also served as janitors fire builders cooks and water haulers They reported few difficulties with discipline The schools often functioned as hubs for their communities and popular social activities included holiday programs plays spelling bees box socials picnics and dances The young women confronted numerous challenges For most it was their first job They were away from friends and family They lacked supplies For several the experience also was an introduction to country life Elsie Hodgson learned to ride a horse Helen Donald Hadley s students showed her how to harvest wild onions that grew among rocks behind her schoolhouse Emma Darter Utz rejected the idea of a field trip coyotes and cougars prowled too near her school Others contended with mischievous pet monkeys and swarms of bees Facing these ordeals with creativity dedication and pluck they enhanced the lives of many children and earned the adoration of their rural populations

Our Schools and Universities Have Made the Grade , 1997

Making the Grade Tony Wagner, 2003-12-16 This book provides a guide for a long overdue public dialogue about why and how we need to reinvent our nation s schools How has the world changed for our children what do all students need to know in light of these changes how do we hold students and schools accountable for results what do good schools look like and what must leaders do to create more of these schools These are some of the questions that drive this book The answers emerging to these questions may surprise many The most successful public schools of the 21st century look a lot more like our 19th century village schools than our current factory model of schooling This book describes these new village schools that have been created in the last decade and suggests that they are a prototype for the schools of the future

Development Asia—Making the Grade? Asian Development Bank, 2011-06-01 Education attacks poverty at its roots laying the groundwork for achieving all development goals Teaching children to read and write for example not only improves their employment prospects but also better attunes them to their country s development goals all of which depend on disseminating important information to be successful As such literacy is the foundational cornerstone for development This edition of Development Asia takes stock of the region s successes and remaining challenges in the education sector The issue looks at different approaches to reform the educational system to advance national interests from building elite universities to strengthening vocational programs A story on the Republic of Korea relates efforts of the state to wean students overdependence on private tutoring which is jacking up the cost of education Preparing for a Windfall talks about how Mongolia is consolidating its economic gains by investing in schools even in the Gobi Desert

Making the Grade William A. Fischel, 2009-11-15 A significant factor for many people deciding where to live is the quality of the local school district with superior schools creating a price premium for housing The result is a race to the top as all school districts attempt to improve their performance in order to attract homebuyers Given the importance of school districts to the daily lives of children and families it is surprising that their evolution has not received much attention In this provocative book William Fischel argues that the historical development of school districts reflects Americans desire to make their communities attractive to outsiders The result has been a standardized interchangeable system of education not overly demanding for either students or teachers one that involved parents and local voters in its governance and finance Innovative in its focus on bottom up processes generated by individual behaviors rather than top down decisions by bureaucrats Making the Grade provides a new perspective on education reform that emphasizes how public schools form the basis for the localized social capital in American towns and cities

How to Get the Grade Without Doing the Work Charles Lanham, 2010-08-10 The one problem all students run into while they prepare for a test is not what you might think You might naturally assume that the problem is one of memory i e remembering the answers to the test but the real problem is what I call the Situation Effect In laymen terms our intelligence is composed of two halves the first being genetic the second being environmental e g diet sleep sociability etc and these two halves come together to form our current situation Therefore effects on either of these halves can help make or break our grades The only way to improve your situation is to learn how to make your brain happy and comfortable because when youre sad or stressed you will not function as well In fact some people are physically disfigured to a certain degree because they endured so much trial In this state of mind motor skills are frustrated and do not function like they should Also because of provoking anxiety ability to fight disease is infringed Above all your focus drive to succeed and mental activity are all incredibly bankrupt When theyre bad enough it feels like they dont even exist Therefore if you keep yourself as happy as possible you will study more effectively
