Dixon, 1984 Examines the institutions that are significant in formulating national security policy the Presidency the National Security Council the Department of State the Department of Defense the Intelligence Community and the Congress Goes on to review the processes from which major aspects of our national security policy emerge Analyzes three issues the constitutionally mandated conflict between the executive and Congress military reform and what is the national interest and how does national security policy address its attainment U.S. Army War College Guide to National Security Issues: National security policy and strategy J. Boone Bartholomees, Army War College (U.S.). U.S. National Security and Foreign Policymaking After 9/11 M. Kent Bolton, 2008 In December 2004 the 109th Congress passed and President George W Bush signed the Intelligence Reform and Intelligence Prevention Act IRTPA. M Kent Bolton argues that IRTPA represented a change in the trajectory of U S national security policy the first fundamental demonstrable change since the 1947 National Security Act. 1947 NSA became law creating a unified U S Department of Defense the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Council among other entities. As the 1947 NSA presaged a new era of U S policymaking so too did the IRTPA. As such the IRTPA represents an extraordinarily important piece of legislation for students and scholars of U S foreign and national security policy. The author documents how and why it became law and how it has affected policymaking. He further argues that the changes begun by 9 11 and memorialized by IRTPA will likely affect U S national security policymaking for decades if not generations.

The Making of Chinese Foreign and Security Policy in the Era of Reform David M. It includes the contributions of more than a dozen scholars who undertook field research in the People's Republic of China South Korea and Taiwan.
