Fury of Natural Disasters Nancy Williams, 2009 A natural disaster is the consequence of a natural hazard such as volcanic eruption earthquake or landslide which affect human activities Human vulnerability exacerbated by the lack of planning or appropriate emergency management leads to financial environmental and human losses The resulting loss depends on the capacity of the population to support or resist the disaster Human history is replete with various types of natural disasters some recent being Tsunami in Indian Ocean Sichuan earthquake Orissa super cyclone and Katrina hurricane in the U S This book describes the characteristics and magnitude of these deadly natural disasters along with the damages and casualties caused by them as well as their social economic and environmental impacts Also it presents some moving stories survival and rehabilitation

The Galveston Hurricane of 1900 Charles River Editors, 2014-08-15 Includes pictures Includes survivors accounts of the hurricane Includes a bibliography for further reading First news from Galveston just received by train which could get no closer to the bay shore than six miles where the prairie was strewn with debris and dead bodies About 200 corpses counted from the train Large steamship stranded two miles inland Nothing could be seen of Galveston Loss of life and property undoubtedly most appalling Weather clear and bright here with gentle southeast wind G L Vaughan Manager of Western Union in Houston in a telegram to the Chief of the U S Weather Bureau on the day after the hurricane In 2005 the world watched in horror as Hurricane Katrina decimated New Orleans and the calamity seemed all the worse because many felt that technology had advanced far enough to prevent such tragedies whether through advanced warning or engineering At the same time that tends to overlook all of the dangers posed by hurricanes and other phenomena that produce natural disasters After all storms and hurricanes have been wiping out coastal communities ever since the first humans built them As bad as Hurricane Katrina was the hurricane that struck Galveston Texas on September 8 1900 killed several times more people with an estimated death toll between 6 000 12 000 people Prior to advanced communications few people knew about impending hurricanes except those closest to the site and in the days before television or even radio catastrophic descriptions were merely recorded on paper limiting an understanding of the immediate impact Stories could be published after the water receded and the dead were buried but by then the immediate shock had worn off and all that remained were the memories of the survivors Thus it was inevitable that the Category 4 hurricane wrought almost inconceivable destruction as it made landfall in Texas with winds at 145 miles per hour It was only well into the 20th century that meteorologists began to name storms as a way of distinguishing which storm out of several they were referencing and it seems somewhat fitting that the hurricane that traumatized Galveston was nameless Due to the lack of technology and warning many of the people it killed were never identified and the nameless corpses were eventually burned in piles of bodies that could not be interred due to the soggy soil Others were simply buried at sea The second deadliest hurricane in American history claimed 2 500 lives so it s altogether possible that the Galveston hurricane killed over 4 times more than the next deadliest in the U S To this day it remains the country s deadliest natural disaster The Galveston Hurricane of 1900 chronicles the story of the deadliest hurricane in American history Along with pictures of important people places and events you will learn about the Galveston Hurricane like never before in no time at all
