Nature Strikes Back:

LOCKDOWN Devisetty N Ravishankar, 2020-07-13 Lockdown is a collection of poems that took shape during the lockdown period starting from March 2020. The poems bring out the spirit of humanity in these times and it attempts to address the various people and events that are currently underway. Apart from expressions on the people in the frontline like doctors, nurses, sanitary workers etc, there are other poems on social distancing, masks and other general topics on nature, mindfulness, family etc, which will give the reader a choice to experience the inner motives of the author. It will also provide the reader an opportunity to think about the issues and draw his or her conclusions that matter in life. Avenging Nature

Eduardo Valls Oyarzun, Rebeca Gualberto Valverde, Noelia Malla Garcia, María Colom Jiménez, Rebeca Cordero Sánchez, 2020-09-28 Nature thou art my goddess Edmund's bold assertion in King Lear could easily inspire and at the same time function as a lamentation of the inadequate respect of nature in culture. In this volume international experts provide multidisciplinary exploration of the insubordinate representations of nature in modern and contemporary literature and art. The work foregrounds the need to reassess how nature is already and has been for a while striking back against human domination. From the perspective of literary studies, art history, media studies, ethics and philosophy and ethnology and anthropology Avenging Nature highlights the need of assessing insurgent discourses that converging with counter discourses of race, gender or class realize the empowerment of nature from its subaltern position. Acknowledging the argument that cultural representations of nature establish a relationship of domination and exploitation of human discourse over nonhuman reality and that in consequence our regard for nature as humanist critics is instrumental and anthropocentric, the present volume advocates for the view that the time has come to finally perceive nature's vengeance and to critically probe into nature's ongoing revenge against the exploitation of culture. Fear and Nature Christy Tidwell, Carter Soles, 2021-07-07 Ecohorror represents human fears about the natural world: killer plants and animals, catastrophic weather events and disquieting encounters with the nonhuman. Its portrayals of animals, the environment and even scientists build on popular conceptions of zoology, ecology and the scientific process. As such ecohorror is a genre uniquely situated to address life, art and the dangers of scientific knowledge in the Anthropocene. Featuring new readings of the genre, Fear and Nature brings ecohorror texts and theories into conversation with other critical discourses. The chapters cover a variety of media forms from literature and short fiction to manga, poetry, television and film. The chronological range is equally varied, beginning in the nineteenth century with the work of Edgar Allan Poe and finishing in the twenty-first with Stephen King and Guillermo del Toro. This range highlights the significance of ecohorror as a mode. In their analyses the contributors make explicit connections across chapters, question the limits of the genre and address the ways in which our fears about nature intersect with those we hold about the racial, animal and bodily other. A foundational text, this volume will appeal to specialists in horror studies, Gothic studies, the environmental humanities and ecocriticism. In addition to the editors, the contributors include

Human impact on landscape can be conceptualised in terms of socially governed ecological systems In the past the adaptive capacity of human cultural systems has been emphasised Nowadays a shift can be recognised towards modified views Resources are discussed as prerequisites for establishing complex human societies This includes also a more biologically minded view from the standpoint of the humanities In such a view human societal complexes can be understood as systems that manage energy and matters The concept of social metabolic regimes has developed in such a context Cultures as seen within this paradigm are not understood merely as autopoietic symbolic entities but as results of an interaction of material prerequisites and emerging social structures One might dismiss this as an epistemological shift part of the play of science with itself But it remains unsolved so far in terms of evolutionary theory if the ultimate goal of evolution is reproductive success or accessi Little Horrors T.S. The Hartwell Approach to Climate Policy Steve Rayner, Mark Caine, 2014-09-19 The Hartwell Approach to Climate Policy presents a powerful critique of mainstream climate change policies and details a set of pragmatic alternatives based on the Hartwell Group's collective writings from 1988-2010 Drawing on a rich history of heterodox but increasingly accepted views on climate change policy this book brings together in a single volume a series of key related texts that define the Hartwell critique of conventional climate change policies and the Hartwell approach to building more inclusive pragmatic alternatives This book tells of the story of how and why conventional climate policy has failed and drawing from lessons learned how it can be renovated It does so by weaving together three strands of analysis First it highlights why the mainstream approach as embodied by the Kyoto Protocol has failed to produce real world reductions in greenhouse gas emissions and delayed real meaningful progress on climate change Second it explores the underlying political economic and technological factors which form the boundary conditions for climate change policy but which are often ignored by policy makers and advocates Finally it lays out a novel approach to climate change guided centrally by the goal of uplifting human dignity worldwide and the recognition that this can only succeed if pursued pragmatically economically and with democratic legitimacy With contributions from leading scholars in the field this work presents a original critique of climate policy and a constructive primer for how to improve it
