Participation and Covenant Contours of a Theodramatic Theology Moes develops a theological framework that has participation in the life of God in Christ through the Spirit as its integrative center In doing so he enters into conversation with covenant or federal theology particularly as it has been presented by Michael Horton in which the integrative center is the concept of the covenant He argues that God s fundamental relationship with humanity does not entail a covenant ontology a fundamentally legal and ethical relationship to God as we find in Horton s presentation but rather an ontology of participating in God s loving presence in Christ through the Holy Spirit For this relationship we were created and this participation is therefore natural to us Accordingly a theodramatic framework that incorporates a reframed understanding of divine human covenants and that has participation in the life of God in Christ by the Spirit as its integrative center is better able to give direction for clearly communicating the gospel in our secular culture and for properly shaping our Christian identity and practice in the face of the secularism that affects the church too than Horton s framework of covenant theology
