Visions of Nature Dr. Jarrod Hore, 2022-04-19 Visions of Nature revives the work of late nineteenth century landscape photographers who shaped the environmental attitudes of settlers in the colonies of the Tasman World and in California Despite having little association with one another these photographers developed remarkably similar visions of nature They rode a wave of interest in wilderness imagery and made pictures that were hung in settler drawing rooms perused in albums projected in theaters and re created on vacations In both the American West and the Tasman World landscape photography fed into settler belonging and produced new ways of thinking about territory and history During this key period of settler revolution a generation of photographers came to associate nature with remoteness antiquity and emptiness a perspective that disguised the realities of Indigenous presence and reinforced colonial fantasies of environmental abundance This book lifts the work of these photographers out of their provincial contexts and repositions it within a new comparative frame

Art for an Undivided Earth Jessica L. Horton, 2017-05-18 In Art for an Undivided Earth Jessica L Horton reveals how the spatial philosophies underlying the American Indian Movement AIM were refigured by a generation of artists searching for new places to stand Upending the assumption that Jimmie Durham James Luna Kay WalkingStick Robert Houle and others were primarily concerned with identity politics she joins them in remapping the coordinates of a widely shared yet deeply contested modernity that is defined in great part by the colonization of the Americas She follows their installations performances and paintings across the ocean and back in time as they retrace the paths of Native diplomats scholars performers and objects in Europe after 1492 Along the way Horton intervenes in a range of theories about global modernisms Native American sovereignty racial difference archival logic artistic itinerancy and new materialisms Writing in creative dialogue with contemporary artists she builds a picture of a spatially temporally and materially interconnected world

American Art Deanna Fernie, 2016-12-05 Deanna Fernie analyzes the significance of sculpture in Hawthorne's fiction through the recurring motif of the fragment in its double guise as ruin and project. Her book casts new light on Hawthorne's memorable ruined and unfinished images from the rough hewn figurehead of Drowne's Wooden Image 1844 to the tattered letter A in the unfinished loft of the Custom House in The Scarlet Letter 1850 and the unfinished bust of Donatello in The Marble Faun 1860. Fernie shows how the tension between the formed and unformed enabled Hawthorne to interrogate the origins and the distinctive possibilities of art in America in relation to established European models. At the same time she suggests that sculpture challenged and provoked Hawthorne's shaping of his own specifically literary art, stimulating him to develop its capacities for expressing irresolution and change. Fernie establishes the intellectual contexts for her study through a discussion of sculpture and fragmentary form as revealed in American, British, and Continental thought. Her book will be an important text not only for American literature scholars but also for anyone interested in British and Continental Romanticism and the intersections of art and literature.

Cause for Alarm Amy S. Greenberg, 2014-07-14 Though central to the social, political, and cultural life of the nineteenth-century city, the urban volunteer fire department has nevertheless been largely ignored by historians. Redressing this neglect, Amy Greenberg reveals the meaning of this central institution by comparing the fire departments of Baltimore, St. Louis, and San Francisco from the late eighteenth to the mid-nineteenth century. Volunteer fire companies protected highly flammable cities from fire and provided many men with friendship, brotherhood, and a way to prove their civic virtue. While other scholars have claimed that fire companies were primarily working class, Greenberg shows that they were actually mixed social groups: merchants and working men, immigrants and native born, all found a common identity as firemen. Cause for Alarm presents a new vision of urban culture, one defined not by class but by gender. Volunteer firefighting united men in a shared masculine celebration of strength and bravery, skill and appearance. In an otherwise alienating environment, fire companies provided men from all walks of life with status, community, and an outlet for competition, which sometimes even led to elaborate brawls. While this culture was fully respected in the early nineteenth century, changing social norms eventually demonized the firemen's vision of masculinity. Greenberg assesses the legitimacy of accusations of violence and political corruption against the firemen in each city and places the municipalization of firefighting in the context of urban social change, new ideals of citizenship, the rapid spread of fire insurance, and new firefighting technologies.

The Art and Thought of John La Farge Katie Kresser, 2017-07-05 The Art and Thought of John La Farge Picturing Authenticity in Gilded

Age America offers an unprecedented portrait of one of the most celebrated artists of the Gilded Age and opens a window onto nineteenth century American culture The book reveals how the work of John La Farge contributed to a rich philosophical dialogue concerning the trustworthiness of human perception In his struggle against a common truth of iconic symbols presented by a new mass visual culture La Farge developed a subversive approach to visual representation that focused attention not on the artwork itself but on the complex real encounter of artist subject and medium from which the artwork came Katie Kresser charts La Farge s efforts to assert his own reality his own intrinsic uniqueness in a postwar society that increasingly based personal identity on standardized vocational labels and economic productivity La Farge s work is contrasted with that of Kenyon Cox James Whistler and Henry Adams all of whom for La Farge had fallen prey to the crass new visual environment albeit in very different ways This innovative study suggests that La Farge dealt with issues still relevant in a world characterized by ubiquitous mass media and the proliferation of normative visions
