one million years in the making The Home-School Connection Flora V. Rodriguez-Brown, 2009-06-02 In this unique contribution to the literature on parental involvement in culturally and linguistically diverse communities Flora Rodriguez Brown offers a critique of family literacy programs that lack a clear design for literacy activities relevant to community goals offering an alternative model that is grounded within an abiding respect for the parents role as the child's first and ultimately most important teacher Robert D Milk University of Texas San Antonio The Project FLAME program used as context for this book is a comprehensive family literacy model supported by a strong sociocultural framework based on current research on cultural ways of learning and theories of multiliteracies and discourse The model highlights the relevance of parents knowledge cultural ways and discourses in sharing literacy knowledge with their children A pressing need exists for models and programs that effectively serve the educational needs of the steadily increasing numbers of culturally and linguistically diverse students in U S public schools today Addressing issues related to development implementation and effectiveness of a program model that fulfills this need this book is an essential resource for educators community workers and researchers interested in the relevance of the home school connection in relation to children's school success Cognition: Theory and Practice Russell Revlin, 2012-02-24 Cognition Theory and Practice provides the link between theory experimental findings and ordinary human activity showing students how the field of cognitive psychology relates to their everyday lives Engagingly written the book captivates students by explaining common experiences such as why answering a cell phone while driving is as dangerous as closing your eyes for a half second but talking with your passenger for a minute can be perfectly safe Research coverage draws heavily on the rapidly accumulating discoveries of human neuroscience and brain imaging Object Performance in the Black Atlantic Paulette Richards, 2023-07-28 Given that slaveholders prohibited the creation of African style performing objects is there a traceable connection between traditional African puppets masks and performing objects and contemporary African American puppetry This study approaches the question by looking at the whole performance complex surrounding African performing objects and examines the material culture of object performance Object Performance in the Black Atlantic argues that since human beings can attribute private personal meanings to objects obtained for personal use such as dolls vessels and quilts the lines of material culture continuity between African and African American object performance run through objects that performed in ritual rather than theatrical capacity Split into three parts this book starts by outlining the spaces where the African American object performance complex persisted through the period of slavery Part Two traces how African Americans began to reclaim object performance in the era of Jim Crow segregation and Part Three details how increased educational and economic opportunities along with new media technologies enabled African Americans to use performing objects as a powerful mode of resistance to the objectification of Black bodies This is an essential study for any students of puppetry and material performance and particularly those concerned with African American performance and performance in North America more broadly
