Indeed, one may legitimately complain that there are too many laws that are changing too rapidly. However, law acquires no life nor performs its intended social functions without proper implementation and enforcement. Here, few people Chinese or foreign are content with the general situation of implementation of law in China. The problems and difficulties in implementing and enforcing laws and regulations are reported and discussed in the various forums of the Chinese media almost on a daily basis and often reported in Western media also. Academics in China are filling the pages of various legal journals with their diagnoses and analyses of the causes of and solutions to the lack of proper implementation of law and legal regulations and policy measures are being issued to deal with these problems and to overcome the difficulties. The future of the rule of law in China, as we are so often reminded by scholars of Chinese politics and law, largely depends on the proper implementation and enforcement of law. This is a book about law in action in China that is it focuses on the administration of the law as a process through which law in the books is put into action and hence is made to perform its intended social functions. It deals with the process, the institutional settings, the players and the political, economic, social and cultural settings, the factors involved in the administration of law in China. Throughout the book, we will see a variety of problems and difficulties involved in implementing and enforcing laws and regulations that are identified and analyzed by the contributors. We will also see analyses on legal regulations and policy measures that have been issued to rectify the many identified problems, to raise the standard of actual implementation of law and to improve the functioning of the various law implementing/enforcing authorities. Additionally, the book provides various case studies on implementation of law in China. The present book, we believe, is among the first collective efforts at a systematic and comprehensive study of the implementation of law in China and we hope that it will stimulate many more such studies on the actual operation and impact of law on society and on individuals.

Making It Count Arunabh Ghosh, 2022-01-11 Among the biggest challenges facing leaders of the newly established People's Republic of China (PRC) was how much they did not know. In 1949, at the end of a long sequence of wars, the government of one of the largest states in the world committed to fundamentally re-engineering its society and economy via socialist planning while having almost no hard, reliable statistical data about their own country. This book is a history of attempts made to resolve this crisis in counting. Drawing on a wealth of official, institutional and private sources culled from China, India and the United States, the author explores the choices made and the effects they engendered through a series of vivid encounters with political leaders, professional statisticians, academics, ordinary statistical workers and even literary figures. Early reliance on Soviet-inspired methods of enumeration became increasingly untenable in China by the middle of the 1950s. A series of unprecedented and unexpected exchanges with Indian statisticians followed as the Chinese sought to learn about the then exciting new technology of random sampling. These developments were in turn overtaken by the tumult of the Great Leap Forward 1958-1961 when both probabilistic and exhaustive methods were rejected and statistics was refashioned into an essentially ethnographic enterprise. The author argues that this history usually narrowly described as a universal if European history cannot be understood without acknowledging Soviet and Indian influences which not only revises existing models of Cold War science but also globalizes the wider developments in the history of statistics and data. For historians of China and social science and political scientists, sociologists and anthropologists studying modern China.

Rivers of Iron David M. Lampton, Selina Ho, Cheng-Chwee Kuik, 2020-10-13. In 2013, Chinese President Xi Jinping unveiled what would come to be known as the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), a global development strategy involving infrastructure projects and associated financing throughout the world, including Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Europe, and the Americas. While the Chinese government has framed the plan as one promoting transnational connectivity, critics and security experts see it as part of a larger strategy to achieve global dominance. Rivers of Iron examines one aspect of President Xi Jinping's New Era China's effort to create an intercountry railway system connecting China and its seven Southeast Asian neighbors: Cambodia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, Singapore, Thailand, and Vietnam. This book illuminates the political strengths and weaknesses of the plan, as well as the capacity of the impacted countries to resist, shape, and even take advantage of China's wide-reaching actions. Using frameworks from the fields of international relations and comparative politics, the authors of Rivers of Iron seek to explain how domestic politics in these eight Asian nations shaped their varying external responses and behaviors. How does China wield power using infrastructure? Do smaller states have agency? How should we understand the role of infrastructure in broader development? Does industrial policy work? And crucially, how should competing global powers respond?

Legal Protection of Private Equity Investors in China Chi Zhang, 2019-03-19. This monograph aims to provide an in-depth analysis of the legal protection of private equity (PE) investors in China. In an academic sense, this research mainly focuses on the agency problems in the life cycle of PE investment under the business organization law system in China. Briefly speaking, the agency problems of PE investment derive from the two-level separation of ownership and control, one of which is the principal-agent relationship between the PE investors and the fund manager, and the other is the principal-agent relationship between the PE shareholders and the management of investee companies. It is the first research to provide an in-depth examination on the investor protection in the PE investment under the business organization law system in China.

China and the European Union in Africa Benjamin Barton, 2016-05-23. China's rise on the international scene over the past few years has correlated with its exponential economic growth. The European Union (EU), the world's largest development aid provider has been feeling the heat of Beijing's closer ties with Africa. As a result, the EU's overall policy making towards Africa has suffered from a loss of credibility and this has been further exposed both by the success of China's investments in Africa and by the favourable response that China's investment proposals have received from African leaders. Dividing the book into five parts, the editors and an outstanding line up of Chinese and European contributors guide the reader through the complexities of China's rising influence in Africa but they also analyse if and how the EU should adapt to this.

Green Digital Finance and Sustainable Development Goals Farhad Taghizadeh-Hesary, Suk Hyun, 2022-07-01 This book aims to fill the literature gap on digital instruments and FinTech in enhancing green finance. Technological innovation can increase transparency, accountability and speed, decentralize the financial system, improve risk management, increase competition, lower costs, improve efficiency, increase cross sectoral collaboration and integration and scale up green finance. Artificial intelligence, AI, distributed ledger technologies (DLT) or blockchain, peer to peer lending platforms, big data, Internet based and mobile based payment platforms, Internet of Things (IoT), matchmaking platforms including crowdlending, tokenizing green assets are potential means to scale up the green finance for achieving the SDGs. The COVID 19 pandemic, the economic downturns and the uncertainties shrank the new investments in renewable energy projects globally. Low investment in renewable energy projects could threaten the expansion of green energy needed to provide energy security and meet SDG7 and SDG13. Investments in renewable energy projects are scarce because of several risks and a low rate of return. Although several new green financing solutions such as green bonds, green banks, green credit guarantee, carbon taxation, carbon trade, village funds and community trust funds have been established in different countries, these are insufficient and alternative ways to finance projects are required. The book provides several high quality studies on utilizing digitalization, FinTech, financial innovations and other new technologies to fill the finance gap of green projects to meet the SDG goals. The chapters are written by scholars in diverse countries and regions and include practical policy recommendations.
