Insights Into Gender Equity, Equality and Power Relations in Sub-saharan Africa Mansah Prah, 2013 Since gender entered the development discourse in the Seventies African countries have increasingly taken the concept on board in policy and practice This concern

may be due to either one or a combination of the following factors the ideological positioning of African countries demands by their donors and development partners and demands by organised local groups and NGOs Gender in the development discourse ought to transform power relations between men and women and shift them to social relations that reflect their equal access to productive resources opportunities and social and material benefits The result of such actions should be an achievement of comparable status of women and men This volume initiated by OSSREA seeks to examine in more depth issues regarding the gender power imbalance in sub Saharan African countries with a specific focus on the eastern and southern African regions The chapters in this book present research that examines and analyses the effectiveness and efficiency of gender mainstreaming policies strategies and projects developed and implemented by national and international actors The themes inter weave with each other although they address gender issues in specific countries and specific contexts This can be explained by the shared colonial and post colonial heritage of African countries It is useful therefore to view the structure of the book as a spiral of inter connected issues that address similar themes approaching them from different levels Purely for ease of reading the contributions have been organised into three parts with over arching themes that at first glance may seem not to fit well together A theme that runs through all the chapters is the persistence of patriarchal values and attitudes in Africa and its constraining effect on the achievement of gender equity and equality

Simple Heuristics in a Social World Ralph Hertwig, Ulrich Hoffrage, ABC Research Group, 1999-09-30 Simple Heuristics in a Social World invites readers to discover the simple heuristics that people use to navigate the complexities and surprises of environments populated with others The social world is a terrain where humans and other animals compete with conspecifics for myriad resources including food mates and status and where rivals grant the decision maker little time for deep thought protracted information search or complex calculations Yet the social world also encompasses domains where social animals such as humans can learn from one another and can forge alliances with one another to boost their chances of success According to the book's thesis the undeniable complexity of the social world does not dictate cognitive complexity as many scholars of rationality argue Rather it entails circumstances that render optimization impossible or computationally arduous intractability the existence of incommensurable considerations and competing goals With optimization beyond reach less can be more That is heuristics simple strategies for making decisions when time is pressing and careful deliberation an unaffordable luxury become indispensable mental tools As accurate as or even more accurate than complex methods when used in the appropriate social environments these heuristics are good descriptive models of how people make many decisions and inferences but their impressive performance also poses a normative challenge for optimization models In short the Homo socialis may prove to be a Homo heuristicus whose intelligence reflects ecological rather than logical rationality
