Who Guards the Guardians and How Thomas C. Bruneau, Scott D. Tollefson, 2009-06-03 The continued spread of democracy into the twenty first century has seen two thirds of the almost two hundred independent countries of the world adopting this model In these newer democracies one of the biggest challenges has been to establish the proper balance between the civilian and military sectors A fundamental question of power must be addressed who guards the guardians and how In this volume of essays contributors associated with the Center for Civil Military Relations in Monterey California offer firsthand observations about civil military relations in a broad range of regions including Latin America Africa Asia and Eastern Europe Despite diversity among the consolidating democracies of the world their civil military problems and solutions are similar soldiers and statesmen must achieve a deeper understanding of one another and be motivated to interact in a mutually beneficial way The unifying theme of this collection is the creation and development of the institutions whereby democratically elected civilians achieve and exercise power over those who hold a monopoly on the use of force within a society while ensuring that the state has sufficient and qualified armed forces to defend itself against internal and external aggressors Although these essays address a wide variety of institutions and situations they each stress a necessity for balance between democratic civilian control and military effectiveness

Canada's National Defence: Defence organization Queen's University (Kingston, Ont.). School of Policy Studies, 1997 Volumes in the Canada's National Defence series present an annotated collection of government statements on defence policy and internal studies and reports prepared by senior military officers, defence officials and consultants to governments and ministers from about 1945 to 1997. They trace the history of the ideas that give Canada's defence policy and defence organizations their unique character. If there is an enduring Canadian strategy for national defence, it is expressed in these papers. Volume 2, Defence Organization, is a collection of eight documents on the organization of the national defence establishment. Covering the period from 1936 to 1990, the papers include Colonel Pope's Memorandum, The McGill Reports, The Glassco Report, Hellyer's Reorganization, The Management Review Group, The Fyffe Review, The Vance Review, and The Little Hunter Study.

Campaigns for International Security Douglas Bland, Sean M. Maloney, Queen's University (Kingston, Ont.). School of Policy Studies, 2004. After more than ten years of effort by many states to control and redress conflicts in the Balkans, Africa, the Middle East, and elsewhere, Canadian political and military leaders are still struggling to adjust defence policies and to build armed forces relevant to the international security situation Canada faces today. But the unending demand of what on the surface seem to be disparate operations and the absence of any overarching description of strategic reality confounds these efforts. Policies drawn from theories appropriate to the cold war era and classic peacekeeping missions are out of step with the demands of the past ten years and the future and make it difficult to develop new ways of thinking about defence policy and force development to deal with the world we live in. In Campaigns for International Stability, the authors see a new pattern emerging from ten years of experience and seemingly different operations. The post cold war era has been superseded by the stability campaign, a continuous diplomatic and military endeavour by states in various types of coalitions to halt conflicts, disarm belligerents, and police lawless regions around the world to bring peace, order, and good government to international affairs. Armed force, and sometimes deadly force, is the central and necessary component of this campaign, but what type of force and what type of policies are appropriate to this new era? The authors address this question in a discussion of defence policy and management in Canada since 1989 and their relation to the needs of the stability campaign. They describe policy making in a Canadian context, political and other domestic factors that shape Canada's military capabilities, and the influence of the defence budgeting process on policy choices. Finally, the authors set out a new defence policy framework for rebuilding and transforming both policy and the Canadian Armed Forces over the next ten years to meet the challenges of the stability campaign.

The Very Long Game Heiko Borchert, Torben Schütz, Joseph Verbovszky, 2024-07-18. This open access book is the outcome of a unique multinational effort organized by the Hamburg-based Defense AI Observatory (DAIO) to portray the current state of affairs regarding the use of artificial intelligence (AI) by armed forces around the world. The contributions span a diverse range of geostrategic contexts by providing in-depth case studies on Australia, Canada, China, Denmark, Estonia,

Finland France Germany Greece India Iran Israel Italy Japan the Netherlands Russia Singapore South Korea Spain Sweden Taiwan Turkey Ukraine the UK and the United States The book does not speculate about the future implications of AI on armed forces but rather discusses how armed forces are currently exploring the potential of this emerging technology By adopting a uniform analytical framework each case study discusses how armed forces view defense AI how they are developing AI enhanced solutions adapting existing structures and processes and funding their defense AI endeavors to what extent defense AI is already fielded and operated and how soldiers and officers are being trained to work with AI The

Routledge Handbook of Soviet and Russian Military Studies Alexander Hill, 2025-02-24 This handbook brings together historical and contemporary essays about Soviet and Russian military studies to offer a comprehensive volume on the topic Comprising essays written by acknowledged specialists the handbook examines the development of the Russian and Soviet armed forces from the Napoleonic Wars all the way through to the course and conduct of the Special Military Operation in Ukraine Divided into thematic and chronological sections the volume looks at wars fought by the Tsarist regime through to the First World War the Soviet Union's Great Patriotic War from 1941 to 1945 the Cold War including the Soviet war in Afghanistan and Russia's post Soviet wars and military development In addition the volume also includes a section that analyses a number of overarching themes including the development of Russian and Soviet airpower partisan warfare counterinsurgency and the role of women in Russian and Soviet armed forces The volume concludes with an essay looking at whether using the historical material and material on the conduct of the war in Ukraine we can reasonably talk of a Russian way of war This volume will be of considerable interest to students of the Soviet Union and Russia strategic studies and military history No Life Like It Harrison, Deborah, Laliberte, Lucie, 1994 Acknowledgements Introduction 1 No Life Like It
