

THE NATIONAL QUESTION (continued from page 1)

The question that arises in connection with nationalism is not whether it is a force for good or evil, but whether it is a force for the preservation of the individual or for the preservation of the nation. The answer to this question is not a simple one, for the individual and the nation are both forces for good and evil. The individual is a force for good when he is a force for the preservation of his own life and the life of his fellow-men. The individual is a force for evil when he is a force for the preservation of his own life at the expense of the life of his fellow-men. The nation is a force for good when it is a force for the preservation of the life of its members. The nation is a force for evil when it is a force for the preservation of its own life at the expense of the life of its fellow-nations.
