Health Care Restructuring Lois Morton, 2001 Competitive health care markets are unable to produce the health status goals Americans have set for themselves Market driven health care replaces health status goals with profitability goals Competitive markets can only respond to the biomedical model of health care services They can't alter structural characteristics of poverty disease and injury that are the root sources of health care costs and health status outcomes Civic community a variation of civil society offers a third way as opposed to markets and government command systems of restructuring health care by addressing the root causes of the current system's shortcomings When given space to act civic community is able to set new rules and guidelines that mediate and redirect excessive competitive markets and an intrusive government Civic community is a conscious undertaking by individuals within and across multiple organizations to through dialogue and actions shape the function of society in this case the restructuring of the health care function In civic community organizations set aside self interest to achieve a common interest allocation of scarce resources for the public good Dr Morton an assistant professor of sociology examines large scale processes and regionalized response to changing health care environments Empirical findings case studies and archival documents support her contention that the civic community model can provide governments with a road map for setting regulations monitoring and enforcing practices relating to baseline health care and provider and insurer behaviors When the automatic behavior of health care markets is directed and channeled by civic community there is emerging evidence that preferred health outcomes at affordable prices are possible

American Hometown Renewal Gary Mattson, 2016-09-13 Before the interstates Main Street America was the small town's commercial spine and served as the linchpin for community social solidarity Yet during the past three decades a series of economic downturns has left many of the great small cities barely viable American Hometown Renewal is the first book to combine administrative budgetary and economic analysis to examine the economic and fiscal plight currently facing America's small towns Featuring a blend of theory applications and case studies it provides a comprehensive single source textbook covering the key issues facing small town officials in today's uncertain economy. Written by a former public manager, university professor, and consultant to numerous small towns in the Heartland, this book demonstrates the ways in which contemporary small towns throughout the nation are facing economic challenges brought about by the financial shocks that began in 2008. Each chapter explores a theme related to small town revival and provides a related tool or technique to enable small town officials to meet the challenges of the 21st Century. Encouraging local small town officials to look at the economic orbit of communities in a similar manner as a town's budget or a family's personal wealth, examining its specific competitive advantages in terms of relative assets to those of competing communities, this book provides the reader with step-by-step instructions on how to conduct an asset inventory and apply key asset tools to devise a strategy for overcoming the challenges and constraints imposed upon spatially fixed communities.

American Hometown Renewal is an essential primer for students studying city management, economic community development, and city planning, and will be a trusted handbook for city managers, geographers, city planners, urban or rural sociologists, political scientists, and regional microeconomists. America, History and Life, 1999. Provides historical coverage of the United States and Canada from prehistory to the present. Includes information abstracted from over 2,000 journals published worldwide.
