Before the West Was West Amy T. Hamilton, Tom J. Hillard, 2014 Before the West Was West examines the extent to which scholars have engaged in depth with pre 1800 western texts and asks what we mean by western American literature in the first place and when that designation originated Calling into question the implicit temporal boundaries of the American West in literature a literature often viewed as having commenced only at the beginning of the 1800s Before the West Was West explores the concrete meaningful connections between different texts as well as the development of national ideologies and mythologies Examining pre nineteenth century writings that do not fit conceptions of the Wild West or of cowboys cattle ranching and the Pony Express these thirteen essays demonstrate that no single unified idea or geography defines the American West Contributors investigate texts ranging from the Norse Vinland Sagas and Mary Rowlandson's famous captivity narrative to early Spanish and French exploration narratives an eighteenth century English novel and a play by Aphra Behn Through its examination of the disparate and multifaceted body of literature that arises from a broad array of cultural backgrounds and influences Before the West Was West apprehends the literary West in temporal as well as spatial and cultural terms and poses new questions about westernness and its literary representation Allen's Indian Mail and Register of Intelligence for British & Foreign India, China, & All Parts of the East, 1849 The Indian Emperor, 1667 John Dryden, 1667

Tasting Difference examines early modern discourses of racial cultural and religious difference that emerged in the wake of contact with foreign peoples and foreign foods from across the globe Gitanjali Shahani reimagines the contact zone between Western Europe and the global South in culinary terms emphasizing the gut rather than the gaze in colonial encounters From household manuals that instructed English housewives how to use newly imported foodstuffs to the spiced Indian air of A Midsummer Night's Dream from the repurposing of Othello as an early modern pitchman for coffee in ballads to the performance of disgust in travel narratives Shahani shows how early modern genres negotiated the allure and danger of foreign tastes Turning maxims such as We are what we eat on their head Shahani asks how did we the colonized subjects become what you the colonizing subjects eat How did we become alternately the object of fear and appetite loathing and craving Shahani takes us back several centuries to the process by which food came to be inscribed with racial character and the racial other came to be marked as edible showing how the racializing of food began in an era well before chicken tikka masala and Balti cuisine Bringing into conversation critical paradigms in early modern studies food studies and postcolonial studies she argues that it is in the writing on food and eating that we see among the earliest configurations of racial difference and it is experienced both as a different taste and as a taste of difference American Bee Journal ,1867
