A Profile of San Bernardino County CalWORKs Caseload James N. Dertouzos, Patricia Anne Ebener, 2000 Welfare reform poses significant challenges and opportunities for California communities To meet this challenge San Bernardino County's Social Services Group leadership recognized that comprehensive information on the needs of program participants would be required To help fill the existing knowledge gap RAND was retained to gather and analyze information on caseload characteristics This documented briefing summarizes and describes the results of a comparative analysis of the characteristics of the 1997 and 1998 TANF caseloads in San Bernardino County California The results are based on analyses of county administrative data on current TANF cases and on survey of current TANF participants The latest RAND survey of TANF participants in San Bernardino County was conducted between February and March 1999 This survey follows an initial effort conducted one year earlier between November and January 1998

A Profile of San Bernardino County CalWORKs Caseload, 2000 In August 1996 Congress dramatically altered the nation's primary cash assistance entitlement program AFDC Aid to Families with Dependent Children replacing it with Temporary Assistance for Needy Families TANF As its name implies TANF provides temporary time limited federal assistance for a maximum of 60 months accumulated over an adult's lifetime and requires that recipients work within two years of beginning aid in order to continue receiving assistance Subsequently the California legislature enacted CalWORKs California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids a program that focuses on moving aid recipients into employment requires counties to provide access to a broad range of services and also requires the establishment of community service programs for participants otherwise unable to obtain work The federal and state welfare reforms provide flexibility to counties in designing programs that meet their unique needs and objectives within State guidelines California's county welfare agencies have seen their mission expand from eligibility determination and accurate payment of benefits to include the provision of a variety of support services to help participants obtain and maintain employment

Managing Welfare Reform in New York City Emanuel S. Savas, 2005 Welfare reform was a spectacular success in New York under Mayor Giuliani despite the city's history of liberal social programs and its huge entrenched welfare system The city reduced the numbers on welfare from 1 120 000 to 460 000 by changing the organizational culture protecting against fraud insisting on work first adapting information technology and contracting for job placement The organizational culture was transformed by bold leadership that changed the welfare agency's mission and goals overcame internal resistance and prevailed over politicians who had a vested interest in the status quo and the media that were opposed to welfare reform Welfare fraud was largely eliminated by dropping from the rolls those who were working and could not appear for in person interviews by fingerprinting recipients to catch those enrolled under multiple identities and those receiving welfare checks from other jurisdictions by uncovering hidden income by enrolling new applicants only after thorough investigation and by tightening controls to prevent fraud by corrupt employees JobStat a computer based system modeled after the Police Department s system used to track precinct activity was developed to track the status of welfare recipients and to monitor the performance of the Job Centers which were formerly called welfare offices JobStat focused the attention of department personnel on performance indicators rather than on minutely specified rules The Giuliani administration s major contribution to national welfare reform was the creation of the only system in the country with large scale alternative work arrangements that was able to acculturate large numbers of the never employed to the world of work

PAIS International in Print Catherine Korvin,2001-04 SB 2030 Child Welfare Services Workload Study ,2000 The American Economic Review ,2002 A Descriptive Profile of CalWORK's Recipients and Their Families Robert Bozick,2019 In June 2012 Governor Jerry Brown signed the California Budget Act of 2012 which included a series of budget trailer bills one of which Senate Bill SB 1041 included significant reforms to California s Temporary Assistance for Needy Families TANF program known as CalWORKs California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids CalWORKs is a public assistance program that provides cash aid and services to eligible low income families with dependent children The California Department of Social Services CDSS provides oversight and administration of CalWORKs while county welfare offices in the state s 58 counties operate the program The SB 1041 reforms effective as of January 2013 included changes to work requirements and the exemption for having a young child with the goal of engaging CalWORKs welfare to work WTW clients in more intensive work related activities as early as possible The reforms also provide enhanced supports to address barriers to work offer more flexibility in work activity options and increase incentives to work as clients move toward self sufficiency To fully understand whether SB 1041 is achieving its objectives and whether there are any unintended consequences the California legislature required an independent evaluation Following a competitive bidding process CDSS awarded the evaluation contract to the RAND Corporation in partnership with the American Institutes for Research AIR As described in the evaluation background and study design report this multi method evaluation includes the collection of primary longitudinal data for a combined sample of adults who entered CalWORKs in 2011 and 2012 before the SB 1041 changes became effective and in 2013 and 2014 after the reforms were implemented The sample is drawn from CalWORKs entrants in six counties that serve as focal counties for the larger SB 1041 evaluation Alameda Fresno Los Angeles Riverside Sacramento and Stanislaus These six counties comprised about 44 percent of California s population and 48 percent of the CalWORKs caseload as of 2013 The survey known as the California Socioeconomic Survey CalSES will be fielded in three annual waves and provide the basis for investigating the impact of CalWORKs more broadly and SB 1041 in particular on a range of adult and child outcomes including aspects of well being that cannot be captured with administrative data The objective of this report is to provide a descriptive profile of CalWORKs recipients and their families based upon Wave I of CalSES collected in 2015 The baseline survey covered a range of topics including demographic and household characteristics experiences with CalWORKs education and employment economic resources health child care use and aspects of child development and well being The information was collected through a telephone interview with the adult CalWORKs recipient as well as a child supplement that conducted assessments of child development during an in person visit in the home or other community setting Although the first wave of data cannot be used to estimate the impact of SB 1041 the profile of CalWORKs recipients and their families based on the baseline survey is of interest in its own right for understanding the circumstances of lower income families in California who had enrolled in CalWORKs up to five years prior to the interview
