Paul Chrystal details the politics and strategies leading to each conflict, how and why the Romans were defeated, the tactics employed, the generals and the casualties. Twenty-four experts from the fields of Ancient History, Semitic philology, Assyriology, Classical Archaeology and Classical Philology come together in this volume to explore the role of textiles in ancient religion in Greece, Italy, the Levant and the Near East. Recent scholarship has illustrated how textiles played a large and very important role in the ancient Mediterranean sanctuaries. In Greece, the so-called temple inventories testify to the use of textiles as votive offerings, in particular to female divinities. Furthermore, in several cults, textiles were used to dress the images of different deities. Textiles played an important role in the dress of priests and priestesses, who often wore specific garments designated by particular colours. Clothing regulations in order to enter or participate in certain rituals from several Greek sanctuaries also testify to the importance of dress of ordinary visitors. Textiles were used for the furnishings of the temples, for example in the form of curtains, draperies, wall hangings, sun shields and carpets. This illustrates how the sanctuaries were potential major consumers of textiles; nevertheless, this particular topic has so far not received much attention in modern scholarship. Furthermore, our knowledge of where the textiles consumed in the sanctuaries came from, where they were produced and by whom is extremely limited. Textiles and Cult in the Ancient Mediterranean examines the topics of textile production in sanctuaries, the use of textiles as votive offerings and ritual dress, using epigraphy, literary sources, iconography and the archaeological material itself The Oxford Handbook of the European Iron Age Colin Haselgrove, Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, Peter S. Ethnic Identity and Imperial Power Nico Roymans, 2004 This study explores the theme of Batavian ethnicity and ethnogenesis in the context of the Early Roman empire Its starting point is the current view in the social and historical sciences of ethnicity as a culturally determined subjective construct that is shaped through interaction with an ethnic other The study analyses literary epigraphic and archaeological sources relating to the Batavian image and self image against the backdrop of Batavian integration into the Roman world The Batavians were intensively exploited by the Roman authorities for the recruitment of auxiliary soldiers with the result that their society developed into a full blown military community Jacket
