German and Chinese Contributions to Digitalization Andreas Oberheitmann, Thomas Heupel, Yang Junqing, Wang Zhenlin, 2020-08-01 Digitalization is one of the biggest challenges of the 21st Century In Germany the concept of Industry 4.0 goes back to the high tech strategy of the Federal Government and describes the interlocking of industrial production with the latest information and communication technology In the intelligent factory intelligent and networked machines will operate decide and optimize largely autonomously in cooperation with humans For China the German concept Industry 4.0 is a strategic source of inspiration Among other things it was a model for the current Chinese innovation and industrial policy strategy Made in China 2025 This book is looking into different aspects of digitalization Part 1 presents the concept of Industry 4.0 both from the German and the Chinese perspective Part 2 describes the Chinese innovation concept Made in China 2025 within different economic sectors in China and discusses to what extent Industry 4.0 might be considered its role model Part 3 presents the opportunities and challenges of digitalization and big data from a regional perspective Part 4 analyses the special aspect of the impacts of digitalization for the banking sector and international trade cooperation Finally Part 5 focuses on digitalization and innovation considering small and medium sized companies in particular

Science and technology in a united Germany Jonathan B. Tucker, 1990 Science and technology in Germany during the 1930's and 1940's, 1983 Impacts Of Science And Technology On Currency Internationalization Peter Guangping Zhang, 2023-02-02 For decades science and technology sci tech have influenced world trade world economy and international finance However their specific impacts are seldom known and related empirical studies are rare Thus we must quantify and empirically explore how sci tech influences such areas as mentioned above The purpose of this book is to explore how sci tech influences world trade foreign exchange and currency internationalization in various ways through first quantifying science technology This book empirically explores how major world currencies might change their relative international positions with continuous innovation and diffusion of sci tech Currency internationalization is measured by the percentage share of the average daily turnover of a particular currency in the global foreign exchange market over the corresponding overall daily turnover of the global foreign exchange market over the corresponding overall daily turnover of the global foreign exchange market Sci tech as a commodity is borderless yet its inventors and related businesses are bound by the intellectual property laws of their own countries Patents especially international patents are useful representations of sci tech They cannot be compared directly because of different criteria of patent regulators worldwide and thus the quality of patents varies across patent regulators Based on patent data from annual IP 5 Statistics Reports and charges for the use of IP of major currency issuers released by the WTO this book quantifies sci tech internationalization using weighted patent families first and proceeds to study how sci tech internationalization affects currency internationalization
