Grubel, Michael Walker, 1989 From the back cover Is the growth of the service sector a menace or a bounty Will our society degenerate into two solitudes the high skilled rich and the low skilled poor How can an export driven economy like Canada survive the growth of the service sector What should governments do to encourage or discourage service growth Service Industry Growth addresses these paradoxes and provides a summary of the most complete and far reaching research project ever conducted on the economics of the service sector Services In World Economic Growth Herbert Giersch, 2019-06-04 This volume is the outcome of the 19th Kiel Week Conference held at the Institute of World Economics 22-24 June 1988 It contains the revised versions of the papers and comments submitted after discussion

The Development of Service Economy Zhenhua Zhou, 2015-10-26 This book focuses on service economy development particularly on how an industrial economy evolves into a service economy The book is organized in three sections The first theoretically answers the general question what is the service economy The second explains the mechanism of the service economy's formation and development revealing the evolution trends and attempts to answer the question where does the service economy come from The third section includes an in depth analysis of Chinese case studies to answer the key question how can the service economy development be promoted Readers will discover what the service economy is and how it relates to and differs from the industrial economy More importantly it will provide policy makers with suggestions for how to promote service economy development The Service Sector: Productivity and Growth Ernesto Felli, Furio C.

Rosati, Giovanni Tria, 2012-12-06 The economics of the service sector has recently attracted a large attention At a macroeconomic level the discussion has been focused on the issues concerning the relationship between the expansion of the service industry and the potential for a stable and sustained growth Slow productivity growth due to the largely non tradable nature of the output lack of competition due either to regulations or to barriers to entry are among the bads sometimes associated with a service led growth On the other hand new working places are created in the service industries at a rate much higher than in the industrial ones Is a lower rate of technological change and the continuing of inflationary tensions the price to pay for a sustained expansion of employment in the service sector These are in a nutshell the questions that led CEIS Centre for International Studies on Economic Growth University of Rome Tor Vergata to organize the International Seminar on The Service Sector Productivity and Growth held in Rome in May 1993 whose revised proceedings are published in this volume The economists and academicians invited to the conference have faced the issues mentioned above from different perspectives but they concentrated especially on the problems relative to growth and productivity Handbook of Service Science Paul P. Maglio, Cheryl A. Kieliszewski, James C. Spohrer, 2010-06-14 As the service sector expands into the global economy a new science of service is emerging one that is dedicated to encouraging service innovation by applying scientific understanding engineering discipline and management practice to designing improving and scaling service systems

The liberalization of trade and factor movements and the adoption of a common currency proposed for the EEC in 1992 have important implications for the rest of the world. Nineteen experts from academia, different countries and regions and international organizations analyze these implications theoretically and empirically. In general, the authors expect Europe 1992 to generate positive effects on trade and welfare, although concerns are raised over possible inward-looking policies by the Community. For many small and distant countries, the effects are shown likely to be insignificant in any case.

Service Industries and Regions Juan R. Cuadrado-Roura, 2013-03-26 The service sector in most advanced economies accounts for up to seventy percent of employment and GDP and given its growing importance has received much research attention over the last two decades. However, not very much attention has been paid to the relationship between this sector and both its territorial impact and regional effects. The main objective of this book is to offer a comprehensive approach to these aspects focusing particularly on the location factors of service industries and the importance of some specific services such as business services and knowledge and information services. The contributions have been prepared by well-known experts in the field from a wide number of countries. The focus of all contributions is not only on theoretical aspects but also provides empirical analyses on specific countries and topics such as the geographical concentration, globalization impacts, foreign direct investments and innovation.

The Impact of the Tax System on Basic Industry, Service Industries, and the Investment Industries United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Finance. Subcommittee on Oversight of the Internal Revenue Service, 1984

Sources of Metropolitan Growth John F. McDonald, 2017-07-31 The factors that determine growth at the industry level are different for innovative versus mature industries. Growth industries rely on high quality workers, access to capital, technical change and numerous forms of collected economies. Mature industries concentrate on low input costs and minimizing costs for wages, transportation, taxes, material, etc. This approach is adopted here to consider the growth and development of metropolitan economies. In twelve chapters, eminent scholars provide a complete review of what works and what doesn't in generating economic development. What are the potential and the reality of producer services, suburban business centers, enterprise zones, technology-based ventures and industrial incubators? How can economic development policy improve the incubator effect? Is there a nationwide venture capital network? What are the locational requirements of firms in high growth industries? Finally, what are the consequences of failed growth? This comprehensive collection includes chapters by Edwin S. Mills, Patricia E. Beeson, Mark A. Satterthwaite, Brendan Huallach in, John F. McDonald, William B. Beyers, Truman A. Hartshorn, Peter O. Muller, Rodney A. Erickson, Richard Florida, Donald F. Smith Jr., Claudia Bird Schoonhoven, Kathleen M. Eisenhardt, Stephen Nord, Robert G. Sheets and Thomas R. Hammer. This work is a must read for policymakers, planners, analysts and students.
