Severn Estuary Landscape Evolution And Wetland Reclamation:

The Severn Estuary Stephen Rippon,1997 The area that borders the Severn estuary is known as the levels and forms one of the most distinctive types of landscape in the UK Stephen Rippon examines the ways in which this area has evolved

Landscape Evolution and Wetland Reclamation Around the Severn Estuary Stephen Rippon,1993      Wetlands Management in North Bihar R. B. Mandal,2010      Agriculture and Industry in South-Eastern Roman Britain David Bird,2016-12-31 The ancient counties surrounding the Weald in the SE corner of England have a strongly marked character of their own that has survived remarkably well in the face of ever increasing population pressure The area is however comparatively neglected in discussion of Roman Britain where it is often subsumed into a generalised treatment of the civilian part of Britannia that is based largely on other parts of the country This book aims to redress the balance The focus is particularly on Kent Surrey and Sussex account is taken of information from neighboring counties particularly when the difficult subsoils affect the availability of evidence An overview of the environment and a consideration of themes relevant to the South East as a whole accompany 14 papers covering the topics of rural settlement in each county crops querns and millstones animal exploitation salt production leatherworking the working of bone and similar materials the production of iron and iron objects non ferrous metalworking pottery production and the supply of tile to Roman London Agriculture and industry provides an up to date assessment of our knowledge of the southern hinterland of Roman London and an area that was particularly open to influences from the Continent      Wetland Archaeology and Beyond Francesco Menotti,2012-03-15 Wetland Archaeology and Beyond offers an appreciative study of the people and their artefacts who occupied a large variety of worldwide wetland archaeological sites The volume also includes a comprehensive explanation of the processes involved in archaeological practice and theory      The Historic Landscape of Devon Lucy Ryder,2013-04-30 The 19th century historic landscape of Devon developed from earlier patterns of landholdings and settlement that are today not always easily discernible on the ground The study of Tithe Survey landholdings field names and associated documentary evidence together with the physical evidence of change and development through field and settlement pattern can be used to elucidate the relationship between field and settlement morphologies and patterns of 19th century landholding The combined evidence for three case study areas the Blackdown Hills Hartland Moors and the South Hams is examined in detail though the creation manipulation and querying of a Geographical Information Systems GIS database Key issues addressed include how far back patterns of 19th century landholding can be traced or projected back into the medieval period the occurrence and extent of open field farming in Devon and the spread of nucleated and dispersed settlements Looking beyond the physical aspects of landscapes the idea of landscape pays and the identification of regional differences in the study of the historic landscape are investigating revealing how closely entwined are the physical and social landscapes of this historic county      The Oxford Handbook of Wetland Archaeology Francesco Menotti,Aidan O'Sullivan,2013 This Handbook sets out the key issues and debates in the theory and practice of wetland archaeology which has played a crucial role in studies of our past Due to the high quantity of preserved organic materials found in humid environments the study of wetlands has allowed archaeologists to reconstruct people s everyday lives in great detail

Beyond the Medieval Village Stephen Rippon,2008-11-27 The varied character of Britain s countryside provides communities with a strong sense of local identity One of the most significant features of the landscape in Southern Britain is the way that its character differs from region to region with compact villages in the Midlands contrasting with the sprawling hamlets of East Anglia and isolated farmsteads of Devon Even more remarkable is the very English feel of the landscape in southern Pembrokeshire in the far south west of Wales Hoskins described the English landscape as the richest historical record we possess and in this volume Stephen Rippon explores the origins of regional variations in landscape character arguing that while some landscapes date back to the centuries either side of the Norman Conquest other areas across southern Britain underwent a profound change around the 8th century AD

Medieval Archaeology Chris Gerrard,2003-10-04 Chris Gerrard looks at the people and excavations that have been important in medieval archaeology and the core theory and methodology used creating an essential text for all medieval archaeologists

Bronze Age Landscapes Joanna Bruck,2002-02-01 This volume is a collection of essays which exemplify the range and diversity of work currently being undertaken on the regional landscapes of the British Bronze Age and the progress which has been made in both theoretical and interpretive debate Together these papers reflect the vibrancy of current research and promote a closer marriage of landscape site and material culture studies the Bronze Age      Water management, communities and environment Hilde Greefs, Marjolein 't Hart, 2006 More so than in most other countries water management was crucial in the Middle Ages and early modern era in the Low Countries where both man and the changing ecological conditions strongly affected the landscape Striking is the enormous variation in solutions to the water threat The authors in this Jaarboek voor Ecologische Geschiedenis primarily focus on the interaction between society and the environment social political and social economic factors prove to explain why the solutions implemented were sometimes sustainable and sometimes not The various case studies are introduced by Martin Reuss a water management specialist from the United States      Iron Age Communities in Britain Barry Cunliffe, 2004-08-02 Since its first publication in 1971 Barry Cunliffe's monumental survey has established itself as a classic of British archaeology This fully revised fourth edition maintains the qualities of the earlier editions whilst taking into account the significant developments that have moulded the discipline in recent years Barry Cunliffe here incorporates new theoretical approaches technological advances and a range of new sites and finds ensuring that Iron Age Communities in Britain remains the definitive guide to the subject      The Archaeology of Maritime Landscapes Ben Ford, 2011-05-21 Maritime cultural landscapes are collections of submerged archaeological sites or combinations of terrestrial and submerged sites that reflect the relationship between humans and the water These landscapes can range in size from a single beach to an entire coastline and can include areas of terrestrial sites now inundated as well as underwater sites that are now desiccated However what binds all of these sites together is the premise that each aspect of the landscape cultural political environmental technological and physical is interrelated and can not be understood without reference to the others In this maritime cultural landscape approach individual sites are treated as features within the larger landscape and the interpretation of single sites add to a larger analysis of a region or culture This approach provides physical and theoretical links between terrestrial and underwater archaeology as well as prehistoric and historic archaeology consequently providing a framework for integrating such diverse topics as trade resource procurement habitation industrial production and warfare into a holistic study of the past Landscape studies foster broader perspectives and approaches extending the study of maritime cultures beyond the shoreline Despite this potential the archaeological study of maritime landscapes is a relatively untried approach with many questions regarding the methods and perspectives needed to effectively analyze these landscapes The chapters in this volume which include contributions from the United States the United Kingdom Norway and Australia address many of the theoretical and methodological questions surrounding maritime cultural landscapes The authors comprise established scholars as well as archaeologists at the beginning of their careers providing a healthy balance of experience and innovation The chapters also demonstrate parity between method and theory where the varying interpretations of culture and space are given equal weight with the challenges of investigating both wet and dry sites across large areas      Westward on the High-Hilled Plains Derek Hurst, 2017-03-31 The West Midlands has struggled archaeologically to project a distinct regional identity having largely been defined by reference to other areas with a stronger cultural identity and history such as Wessex the South West and the North Only occasionally has the West Midlands come to prominence for instance in the middle Saxon period viz the kingdom of Mercia or much later with rural south Shropshire being the birthplace of the Industrial Revolution Yet it is a region rich in natural mineral resources set amidst readily productive farmland and with major rivers such as the Severn facilitating transportation The scale of its later prehistoric monuments notably the hillforts proclaims the centralisation of some functions whether for security exchange or emulation while society supported the production and widespread distribution of specialised craft goods Finally towards the close of prehistory localised kingdoms can be seen to emerge into view In the course of reviewing the evidence for later prehistory from the Middle Bronze Age to Late Iron Age the papers presented here adopt a variety of approaches being either regional county wide or thematic eg by site type or artefactual typology and they also encompass the wider landscape as reconstructed from environmental evidence This is the second volume in a series The Making of the West Midlands that explores the archaeology of the English West Midlands region from the Lower Palaeolithic onwards These volumes based on a series of West Midlands Research Framework seminars aim to transform perceptions of the nature and significance of the archaeological evidence across a large part of central Britain

Environment, Archaeology and Landscape: Papers in honour of Professor Martin Bell Catherine Barnett, Thomas Walker, 2021-10-21 Dedicated to Martin Bell University of Reading this book outlines how wetland and inland environments can be related and investigated using multi method approaches Papers fall under three themes coastal and intertidal archaeology mobility and human environment relationships heritage resource management nature conservation and rewilding

The Wandering Herd Andrew Margetts, 2021-03-23 The British countryside is on the brink of change With the withdrawal of EU subsidies threats of US style factory farming and the promotion of rewilding initiatives never before has so much uncertainty and opportunity surrounded our landscape How we shape our prospective environment can be informed by bygone practice as well as through engagement with livestock and landscapes long since vanished This study will examine aspects of pastoralism that occurred in part of medieval England It will suggest how we learn from forgotten management regimes to inform shape and develop our future countryside The work concerns a region of southern England the pastoral identity of which has long been synonymous with the economy of sheep pasture and the medieval right of swine pannage These aspects of medieval pastoralism made famous by iconic images of the South Downs and the evidence presented by Domesday mask a pastoral heritage in which a significant part was played by cattle This aspect of medieval pastoralism is traceable in the region's historic landscape documentary evidence and excavated archaeological remains Past scholars of the South East have been so concerned with the importance of medieval sheep and to a slightly lesser extent pigs that no systematic examination of the cattle economy has ever been undertaken This book represents a deep multidisciplinary study of the cattle economy over the longue dur e of the Middle Ages especially its importance within the evolution of medieval society settlement and landscape It explores the nature and presence of vaccaries a high status form of specialized cattle ranch They produced beef stock milk and cheese and the draught oxen necessary for medieval agriculture While they are most often associated with wild northern uplands they also existed in lowland landscapes and areas of Forest and Chase Nationally medieval cattle have been one of the most important and neglected aspects of the agriculture of the medieval period As part of both a mixed and specialized farming economy they have helped shape the countryside we know today

Peasants Making History Christopher Dyer,2022-06-02 Peasants have been despised underrated or disregarded in the past Historians and archaeologists are now giving them a more positive assessment and in Peasants Making History Christopher Dyer sets a new agenda for this kind of study Using as his example the peasants of the west midlands of England Dyer examines peasant society in relation to their social superiors their lords their neighbours and their households and finds them making decisions and taking options to improve their lives In their management of farming both cultivation of fields and keeping of livestock they made a series of modifications and some dramatic changes not just reacting to shifts in circumstances but also devising creative initiatives Peasants played an active role in the development of towns both by migrating into urban settings but also by trading actively in urban markets Industry in the countryside was not imposed on the rural population but often the result of peasant enterprise and flexibility If we examine peasant attitudes and mentalities we find them engaging in political life making a major contribution to religion recognizing the need to conserve the environment and balancing the interests of individuals with those of the communities in which they lived Many features of our world have medieval roots and peasants played an important part in the development of the rural landscape participation of ordinary people in government parish church buildings towns and social welfare The evidence to support this peasant centred view has to be recovered by imaginative interpretation and by using every type of source including the testimony of archaeology and landscape

Bristol: A Worshipful Town and Famous City Nigel Baker,Jonathan Brett,Robert Jones,2018-02-21 Bristol is a major city and port in the south west of England In medieval times it became the third largest city in the kingdom behind London and York Bristol was founded in the late Saxon period and grew rapidly in the 12th and 13th centuries Initially seaborne trading links with Ireland and France were particularly significant later from the 16th century onwards the city became a focus for trade with Iberia Africa and the New World This led to the growth of new industries such as brass manufacture glass production and sugar refining producing items for export and processing imported raw materials Bristol also derived wealth from the slave trade between Africa and the New World The city has a long history of antiquarian and archaeological investigation This volume provides for the first time a comprehensive overview of the historical development of Bristol based on archaeological and architectural evidence Part 1 describes the geological and topographical context of Bristol and discusses evidence for the environment prior to the foundation of the city The history of archaeological work in Bristol is discussed in detail as is the pictorial record and the cartographic evidence for the city In Part 2 a series of period based chapters considers the historical background and archaeological evidence for Bristol s development from the prehistoric Roman and post Roman eras through the establishment and growth of Bristol between about 950 and 1200 AD the medieval city early modern period and the period from 1700 to 1900 AD when Bristol was particularly important for its role in transatlantic trade Each chapter discusses the major civic military and religious monuments of the time and the complex topographical evolution of the city Part 3 assesses the significance of Bristol s archaeology and presents a range of themes for future research      Physical Geography of Somerset ,
