Ying Long, Zhenjiang Shen, 2015-10-14 This book describes a comprehensive framework of novel simulation approaches conventional urban models and related data mining techniques that will help develop planning support systems in Beijing as well as other mega metropolitan areas It investigates the relationships between human behaviors and spatial patterns in order to simulate activities in an urban space visualize planning alternatives and support decision making The book first explains urban space using geometric patterns such as points networks and polygons that help identify patterns of household and individual human behavior Next it details how novel simulation methodologies such as cellular automaton and multi agent systems and conventional urban modeling such as spatial interaction models can be used to identify an optimal or a simulated solution for a better urban form The book develops a comprehensive land use and transportation integrated model used to explore the spatial patterns of mutual interaction between human mobility and urban space This model can help forecast the distribution of different types of households rent prices and land prices as well as the distribution of routes and traffic volume based on an appraisal of labor demand and supply This book shows how geospatial analysis can be a useful tool for planners and decision makers to help in ascertaining patterns of activities and support urban planning Offering both novel and conventional approaches to urban modeling it will appeal to researchers students and policy makers looking for the optimal way to plan the development of a mega metropolitan area Southwestern Historical Quarterly, 1993 The Archaeology of Human-Environment Interactions Daniel Contreras, 2016-08-25 The impacts of climate change on human societies and the roles those societies themselves play in altering their environments appear in headlines more and more as concern over modern global climate change intensifies Increasingly archaeologists and paleoenvironmental scientists are looking to evidence from the human past to shed light on the processes which link environmental and cultural change Establishing clear contemporaneity and correlation and then moving beyond correlation to causation remains as much a theoretical task as a methodological one This book addresses this challenge by exploring new approaches to human environment dynamics and confronting the key task of constructing arguments that can link the two in concrete and detailed ways The contributors include researchers working in a wide variety of regions and time periods including Mesoamerica Mongolia East Africa the Amazon Basin and the Island Pacific among others Using methodological vignettes from their own research the contributors explore diverse approaches to human environment dynamics illustrating the manifold nature of the subject and suggesting a wide variety of strategies for approaching it This book will be of interest to researchers and scholars in Archaeology Paleoenvironmental Science Ecology and Geology Wildland Fire, Forest Dynamics, and Their Interactions Marc-André Parisien, Enric Batllori, Carol Miller, Sean A. Parks, 2018-08-15 This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue Wildland Fire Forest Dynamics and Their Interactions that was published in Forests Global Perspectives in the Geography Curriculum Alex Standish, 2008-10-07 For geographers across the globe this book provides the arguments for a return to the teaching of geography and why they should reject the politicisation of the subject by education policy makers and politicians Standish's careful critique shows the necessity of a depoliticised geography curriculum the irony of which would be that it would ensure that every child could point to Iraq Iran and Afghanistan on a map Prof Dennis Hayes Oxford Brookes University UK A prescient and critical analysis of the changing face of geography teaching This book deserves to be widely read and debated Alex Standish's book puts current trends in geography teaching in historical and critical context It comprises a forthright and timely defence of geographical education for its own sake Dr Jim Butcher FRSA Department of Sport Science Tourism and Leisure Canterbury Christ Church University Since the early 1990s educational policy makers and some subject leaders have been seeking to fundamentally change the teaching of geography in UK and US schools from a subject which encourages students to explore spatial concepts ideas and skills to a more ethics based subject concerned with the promotion of environmentalism cultural diversity and social justice In this book the new approach is critically examined within a historical and ideological context addressing a number of fundamental questions Should geography be used as a tool for the delivery of citizenship ideals How does this affect the intellectual and moral value of geographical education for young people If the state and teachers are taking more responsibility for the values attitudes and emotional responses of students how will they learn to develop these qualities for themselves If global perspectives shift the focus of education from learning about the outside world to learning about the self what is its vision of social progress and conception of social change This book advocates a return to liberal models of education arguing that the new approach to geography currently being promoted for schools fundamentally undermines the educational value of the subject and the freedom of young people to shape the world in which they live A vital resource for teachers and student teachers alike Global Perspectives in the Geography Curriculum makes a significant contribution to the growing debate about the future direction of the discipline itself
