emerged in this hemisphere over the past couple of decades Grounded Globalism James L. Peacock, 2010-04-01 The world is flat Maybe not says this paradigm shifting study of globalism s impact on a region legendarily resistant to change The U S South long defined in terms of its differences with the U S North is moving out of this national and oppositional frame of reference into one that is more international and integrative Likewise as the South home to UPS CNN KFC and other international brands goes global people are emigrating there from countries like India Mexico and Vietnam and becoming southerners Much has been made of the demographic and economic aspects of this shift Until now though no one has systematically shown what globalism means to the southern sense of self Anthropologist James L Peacock looks at the South of both the present and the past to develop the idea of grounded globalism in which global forces and local cultures rooted in history tradition and place reverberate against each other in mutually sustaining and energizing ways Peacock s focus is on a particular part of the world however his model is widely relevant Some kind of grounding in locale is necessary to human beings Grounded Globalism draws on perspectives from fields as diverse as ecology anthropology religion and history to move us beyond the model advanced by such scholars as C Vann Woodward that depicts the South as a region paralyzed by the burden of its past Peacock notes that while globalism may lift old burdens it may at the same time impose new ones He also maintains that earlier regional identities have not been replaced by the rootless cosmopolitanism of cyberspace or other abstracted systems Attachments to place remain even as worldwide markets erase boundaries and flatten out differences and distinctions among nations Those attachments exert their own pressures back on globalism says Peacock with subtle strengths we should not discount Transregional Connections in the History of East-Central Europe Katja Castryck-Naumann, 2021-10-25 Transregional connections play a fundamental role in the history of East Central Europe This volume explores this connectivity by showing how people from eastern and central parts of Europe have positioned themselves within global processes while in turn also shaping them The contributions examine different fields of action such as economy arts international regulations and law development aid and migration focusing on the period between the middle of the nineteenth century and the end of the Cold War The authors uncover spaces of interaction and emphasize that internal and external entanglements have established East Central Europe as a distinct region Understanding the connectedness of this subregion is stimulating for the historiography of East Central Europe as it is for the field of global history

Lothar Hönnighausen, 2005 Wet Prairie Shannon Stunden Bower, 2011-06-29 The Canadian prairies are often envisioned as dry windswept fields however much of southern Manitoba is not arid plain but wet prairie poorly drained land subject to frequent flooding Wet Prairie brings to light the complexities of surface water management in Manitoba from early artificial drainage efforts to late twentieth century attempts at watershed management Irregular water flow patterns challenged the checkerboard landscape of the 1872 federal Dominion Lands Act and homesteaders found their agricultural ambitions at odds with local environmental realities Thus in keeping with liberal principles the provincial government undertook substantial drainage efforts Flooding and drainage became the subjects of intense and persistent debate among provincial officials drainage experts and Manitoba residents New alliances and rivalries emerged amid shifting social political and environmental contexts with enduring consequences for both the landscapes and people of the wet prairie This account of an overlooked aspect of Prairie environmental history traces how the biophysical nature of southern Manitoba helped shape both Manitoba society and the provincial state Democratic and Authoritarian Political Systems in 21st Century

Ahlers, Damien Krichewsky, Evelyn Moser, Rudolf Stichweh, 2021-03-05 This book is about the radical novelty of modern polities in a functionally differentiated world society Premodern states were at the apex of a stratified hierarchical society They dominated society and all its groups and strata Modern polities have to be understood through the ecology of relations among different function systems They have to find and incessantly redefine their place in society They produce decisions that are collectively binding but in preparing these decisions experience constraints and knowledge deficiencies that are related to the complexity of a functionally differentiated society The book concentrates on six analytical perspectives that reflect how modern polities are embedded into 21st century society These perspectives are the concept of inclusion and the inclusion revolution constitutive of modern polities the internal differentiation of polities that endows them with an unprecedented complexity the fact that polities do not know anything about society and the ways in which they compensate for this representation and responsiveness as strategies to reconnect with society the self restriction of some polities that brings about ever new autonomous expert organizations the symmetrical rise of autocracies and democracies as the two modern variants of political regimes
