

Radial Nerve Release Surgery

Radial Nerve Entrapment can happen at any segment along the radial nerve.
Here, we see an example of entrapment at the level of the elbow...

Here you can see that the overlying muscle & tissue is entrapping a segment of the Radial Nerve, causing irritation and dysfunction of the nerve

The surgeon carefully creates an incision along the tissue to free up the nerve

The Radial Nerve is now released in this segment, eliminating irritation of the nerve and relieving the patient's symptoms
