Science and Technology for America's Progress Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Engineering, National Academy of Sciences, Committee on Science, Engineering, and Public Policy, Committee on Science and Technology in the National Interest: Ensuring the Best Presidential Appointments, 2008-12-05 The new Obama administration and the 110th Congress elected in November 2008 will face immediate challenges Events will not permit a leisurely leadership transition The prompt appointment of a Presidential science adviser and the nomination of top officials in the new administration with the knowledge and experience to address complex problems will be essential The concerns of the nation regarding jobs and economic growth health care national security energy and the environment demand informed action Each of these concerns from national security economic development health care and the environment to education energy and natural resources is touched in essential ways by the nation s science and technology enterprise This is the fourth in a series of books from the National Academies on the presidential appointment process each delivered during a presidential election year with the goal of providing recommendations to the President elect about appointing his senior science and technology leadership and pursuing sustained improvements in the appointments process The Politics of Presidential Appointments

David E. Lewis, 2010-12-16 In the wake of Hurricane Katrina many questioned whether the large number of political appointees in the Federal Emergency Management Agency contributed to the agency's poor handling of the catastrophe ultimately costing hundreds of lives and causing immeasurable pain and suffering The Politics of Presidential Appointments examines in depth how and why presidents use political appointees and how their choices impact government performance for better or worse One way presidents can influence the permanent bureaucracy is by filling key posts with people who are sympathetic to their policy goals But if the president's appointees lack competence and an agency fails in its mission as with Katrina the president is accused of employing his friends and allies to the detriment of the public Through case studies and cutting edge analysis David Lewis takes a fascinating look at presidential appointments dating back to the 1960s to learn which jobs went to appointees which agencies were more likely to have appointees how the use of appointees varied by administration and how it affected agency performance He argues that presidents politicize even when it hurts performance and often with support from Congress because they need agencies to be responsive to presidential direction He shows how agency missions and personnel and whether they line up with the president's vision determine which agencies presidents target with appointees and he sheds new light on the important role patronage plays in appointment decisions National Issues in Science and Technology 1993 National Research Council, National Academy of Engineering, National Academy of Sciences, Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Sciences, National Academy of Engineering, Institute of Medicine, 1993-02-01 This volume consists of four white papers prepared for the Clinton administration as it took office on important national policy issues in which science and technology play a central role Topics covered are science and technology leadership climate change policy technology policy and industrial innovation and health care reform Also included are brief summaries of ten potentially high impact reports issued by various committees of the National Research Council

Science and Technology Advice William T. Golden, 2017-09-08 This volume aims to attract attention to the necessity for quality advice on science and technology issues to the president of the United States to the Congress and to the judiciary It emphasizes reconsideration and improvement of existing organizations and mechanisms mindful of the need to adapt to changing circumstances Golden has gathered facts and opinions useful to a wide range of people government officials and staffs in all three branches journalists scholars and students of political science science policy and the history of science policy members of the industrial and financial communities and the concerned citizenry The eighty five prominent experts include both of President Reagan's science advisors President Gerald R Ford congressional leaders and distinguished members of the judiciary Science and Technology in the National Interest Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Engineering, National Academy of Sciences, Committee on Science, Engineering, and Public Policy, Committee on Ensuring the Best Presidential and Federal Advisory Committee Science and Technology Appointments,2005-03-23 In 2004 an ad hoc committee was charged with preparing this third report examining the most senior S T appointments to federal government positions and updating the accompanying list of the most urgent S T presidential appointments Sufficient changes have occurred since the National Academies 2000 report on presidential appointments including the 2001 terrorist attacks the anthrax deaths the reorganization of homeland security activities in the federal government new developments in S T and concerns about the politicization of S T decision making and advice to warrant this new edition In contrast with previous reports on the subject this one covers not only presidential appointments to top S T leadership positions but also the appointment of scientists engineers and health professionals to serve on federal advisory committees that focus on science based policy or on the review of research proposals The committee recognizes that other areas of federal responsibility are as important as S T but S T appointments are the only ones within its purview Congressional Record United States.
