Showcasing Globalisation The Political Economy Of The Irish Republic:

Showcasing Globalisation? Nicola Jo-Anne Smith, 2005 Despite the enormous academic debate about the impact of globalisation on national policy making surprisingly few authors choose to explore specific national contexts in significant detail Yet such an approach can reveal a great deal about the dynamics of change in contemporary political economies This book examines in depth what is perhaps the test case for globalisation the Irish Republic Not only is Ireland hailed as the most globalised economy in the world but its transformation into the Celtic Tiger in the 1990s is seen to demonstrate how nations can flourish in the new global economy By implication if other countries are to emulate Ireland's success they too must submit to the exogenous forces of globalisation The book critically assesses such claims exploring what if anything the term globalisation can reveal about the Irish case and indeed what the Irish case can reveal about globalisation In so doing it emphasises the need to unpack processes of economic and policy change highlighting their complexity and contingency

Showcasing Globalisation? Nicola Jo-Anne Smith, 2005 This book examines in depth what is perhaps the test case for globalization the Irish Republic Not only is Ireland hailed as the most globalized economy in the world but its transformation into the Celtic Tiger in the 1990s is seen to demonstrate how nations can flourish in the new global economy By implication if other countries are to emulate Ireland's success they too must submit to the exogenous forces of globalization

Producing globalisation Andreas Antoniadis, 2013-07-19 How can we study globalisation in a way that transcends the material ideational rift How has globalisation resonated and or dominated in different national contexts What role has been played by national political economies and domestic institutions in this process Producing globalisation attempts to scrutinise the nature of the interplay between globalisation and national institutional settings Rather than taking globalisation as a given this book explores how concrete political actors produced the phenomenon of globalisation Such an approach aims to bring human agency and its importance to the forefront of theory and practice in world politics and economics The analysis is based on two case studies Greece and Ireland By examining and comparing the discourses policies and strategies of key national institutional actors in these two countries Producing globalisation offers new insights into the emergence of globalisation as a hegemonic discourse as well as into the theory of hegemonic discourse itself Thus the author invites us to think differently both about the nature of globalisation and the nature of the hegemonic within international political economy

The Irish Welfare State in the Twenty-First Century Mary P. Murphy, Fiona Dukelow, 2016-10-04 This book provides a critical and theoretically informed assessment of the nature and types of structural change occurring in the Irish welfare state in the context of the 2008 economic crisis Its overarching framework for conceptualising and analysing welfare state change and its political economic and social implications is based around four crucial questions namely what welfare is for who delivers welfare who pays for welfare and who benefits Over the course of ten chapters the authors examine the answers as they relate to social protection labour market activation pensions finance water early child education and care health housing and corporate welfare They also innovatively address the impact of crisis on the welfare state in Northern Ireland The result is to isolate key drivers of structural welfare reform and assess how globalisation financialisation neo liberalisation privatisation marketisation and new public management have deepened and diversified their impact on the post crisis Irish welfare state This in depth analysis will appeal to sociologists economists political scientists and welfare state practitioners interested in the Irish welfare state and more generally in the analysis of welfare state change

Cultural Perspectives on Globalisation and Ireland Eamon Maher, 2009 In the space of a few short decades Ireland has become one of the most globalised societies in the Western world The full ramifications of this transformation for traditional Irish communities religious practice economic activity as well as literature and the arts are as yet unknown What is known is that Ireland's largely unthinking embrace of globalisation has at times had negative consequences Unlike some other European countries Ireland has eagerly and sometimes recklessly grasped the opportunities for material advancement afforded by the global project This collection of essays largely the fruit of two workshops organised under the auspices of the Humanities Institute of Ireland at University College Dublin and the National Centre for Franco Irish Studies in the Institute of Technology Tallaght explores how globalisation has taken such a firm hold on Irish society and provides a cultural perspective on the phenomenon The book is divided into two sections The first examines various manifestations of globalisation in Irish society whereas the second focuses on literary representations of globalisation The contributors acknowledged experts in the areas of cultural theory religion sociology and literature offer a panoply of viewpoints of Ireland's interaction with globalisation Ideas, Interests and Institutions Mary Murphy, 2008

An Economic History of Ireland Since Independence Andy Bielenberg, Raymond Ryan, 2013 This book traces the evolution of the Irish economy since independence looking at how the state sought to shape regulate and deregulate economic activity to deal with the challenges posed by the wider international environment Globalisation and Manufacturing Decline Nicola

R.Hothi, 2005-12-12 How globalisation has contributed to UK based industrial decline The Nation-State in Transformation Michael Boss, 2010-07-16 The Nation State in Transformation discusses the significance of the state in a globalised economy Focusing on Denmark and Ireland the book analyses how small states adapt to the international market and argues that the institutional mediation of globalisation helps us explain why some states seem to possess more capacity to adjust than others Not only must we bring the state back in we must also consider how history culture and collective identities influence the performance of the nation state in the new globalised world order With contributions by Francis Fukuyama Bob Jessop David Marsh John A Hall and John Campbell Georg Sorensen Bjorn Hvinden Rory O'Donnell Peadar Kirby Joseph Ruane Brian Girvin Sean O'Riain Chris McNerny Gert and Gunnar Svendsen Lars Bo Kaspersen and Linda Thorsager Henrik Bang and Michael Boss
