Siaya David William Cohen, E. S. Atieno Odhiambo, 1989 Historical Studies and Social Change in Western Kenya William Robert Ochieng', 2002 Indian Ocean Histories Rila Mukherjee, Radhika Seshan, 2019-08-08 This book offers a global history of the Indian Ocean and focuses on a holistic perspective of the worlds of water It builds on maritime historian Michael Naylor Pearson's works his unorthodox approach and strong influence on the study of the Indian Ocean in viewing the oceanic space as replete with human experiences and not as an artefact of empire or as the theatre of European commercial and imperial transits focused only on trade This interdisciplinary volume presents several ways of writing the history of the Indian Ocean The chapters explore the changing nature of Indian Ocean history through diverse themes including state and capital regional identities maritime networking South Asian immigrants Bay of Bengal linkages the East India Company Indian seamen formal and informal collaboration in imperial networking scientific transfers pearling the issues of colonial copyright customs excise and port cities The volume will be useful to scholars and researchers of global history modern history maritime history medieval history Indian history colonial history and world history Decolonization & Independence in Kenya, 1940-93 Bethwell A. Ogot, William Robert Ochieng', 1995 This is a sharply observed assessment of the history of the last half century by a distinguished group of historians of Kenya At the same time the book is a courageous reflection in the dilemmas of African nationhood Professor B A Ogot says The main purpose of the book is to show that decolonization does not only mean the transfer of alien power to sovereign nationhood it must also entail the liberation of the worlds of spirit and culture as well as economics and politics The book also raises a more fundamental question that is How much independence is available to any state national economy or culture in today's world It asks how far are Africa's miseries linked to the colonial past and to the process of decolonization In particular the book raises the basic question of how far Kenya is avoidably neo colonial And what does neo colonial dependence mean The book answers these questions by discussing the dynamic between the politics of decolonization the social history of class formation and the economics of dependence The book ends with a provocative epilogue discussing the transformation of the post colonial state from a single party to a multi party system Migration in Eastern Africa Elias Ayiamba, Alfred T. Otieno, 2025-05-22 This book is a collection of essays written in honour of the late Professor John Oyaro Oucho an icon of migration scholarship in the East Africa region The book is constructed around themes which cover the nexus between challenges and opportunities in migration and national development The book explores environmental planning and management community development urbanization human impact on the environment human security rural settlement health care and governance and is therefore valuable to postgraduate students humanitarian agencies and governments with concerns surrounding emerging migration issues Several chapters highlight the debate among scholars and policy makers on the dynamic nature of migration patterns and streams and the impact of these on the quality of migration data migration theories and the monitoring and evaluation

tools which are appropriate for Africa's development planning

The Gogo Mathius E. Mnyampala, Gregory Maddox, 2015-06-03 A reconstruction of the history and customs of the Gogo people of Africa based in part on oral histories, tribal legends and myths. This work was first published in Swahili in 1954 and was sponsored by the British Colonial government in an attempt to promote tribal cohesion.

Pressing Interests Phoebe Musandu, 2018-10-01 During the first six decades of the twentieth century when the majority of present-day Kenya was under the control of the British Empire, many secular newspapers emerged as the products of tensions between Asian and European immigrants, the British administration and the African petite bourgeoisie. In Pressing Interests, Phoebe Musandu shows that far from expressions of public opinion or vehicles of a free market, these periodicals served as powerful tools for the colonial government and the elite to shape political and economic conditions in their favour. Following the development of the most important newspapers established in colonial Kenya as they evolved to reflect the priorities and ambitions of their owners, investors, publishers, journalists and editors, Pressing Interests explores the roles and contributions of the press in the country's political and economic history. Shedding light on newspapers as business ventures, Musandu focuses on the management, financial and production aspects of media. Drawing on previously unearthed archival documents, official and unofficial correspondence, police and legal records and the newspapers themselves, she further examines the press as a medium for inter and intra-racial competition for power and influence as a base for the production of knowledge and as an instrument for social control. In an era when we are often reminded of the power inherent in the ability to generate and disseminate information, Pressing Interests tells the story of colonial Kenya's press through a timely mix of riveting accounts and the clarifying lens of careful analysis.

Obama and Kenya Matthew Carotenuto, Katherine Luongo, 2016-07-29 Barack Obama's political ascendancy has focused considerable global attention on the history of Kenya generally and the history of the Luo community particularly. From politicians populating the blogosphere and bookshelves in the U.S. and Kenya to tourists traipsing through Obama's ancestral home, a variety of groups have mobilized new readings of Kenya's past in service of their own ends. Through narratives placing Obama into a simplified, sweeping narrative of anticolonial barbarism and postcolonial tribal violence, the story of the United States president's nuanced relationship to Kenya has been lost amid stereotypical portrayals of Africa. At the same time, Kenyan state officials have aimed to weave Obama into the contested narrative of Kenyan nationhood. Matthew Carotenuto and Katherine Luongo argue that efforts to cast Obama as a son of the soil of the Lake Victoria basin invite insights into the politicized uses of Kenya's past. Ideal for classroom use and directed at a general readership interested in global affairs, Obama and Kenya offers an important counterpoint to the many popular but inaccurate texts about Kenya's history and Obama's place in it, as well as focused thematic analyses of contemporary debates about ethnic politics, tribal identities, postcolonial governance and U.S.-African relations.

Africanizing Knowledge Toyin Falola, 2017-11-30 Nearly four decades ago, Terence Ranger questioned to what extent African history was actually African and whether methods and concerns derived from Western historiography were really sufficient tools for researching and narrating African history. Despite a blossoming and branching out of Africanist scholarship in the last twenty years that question is still haunting. The most prestigious locations for production of African studies are outside Africa itself and scholars still seek a solution to this paradox. They agree that the ideal solution would be a flowering of institutions of higher learning within Africa which would draw not only Africanist scholars but also financial resources to the continent. While the focus of this volume is on historical knowledge, the effort to make African scholarship more African is fundamentally interdisciplinary. The essays in this volume employ several innovative methods in an effort to study Africa on its own terms. The book is divided into four parts. Part 1, Africanizing African History, offers several diverse methods for bringing distinctly African modes of historical discourse to the foreground in academic historical research. Part 2, African Creative Expression in Context, presents case studies of African art, literature, music, and poetry. It attempts to strip away the exotic or primitivist aura such topics often accumulate when presented in a foreign setting in order to illuminate the social, historical, and aesthetic contexts in which these works of art were originally produced. Part 3, Writing about Colonialism, demonstrates that the study of imperialism in Africa remains a springboard for innovative work which takes familiar ideas about Africa and considers them within new contexts. Part 4, Scholars and Their Work, critically examines the process of African studies itself, including the roles of scholars in the production of knowledge about Africa. This timely and thoughtful volume will be of interest to African studies scholars and students who are concerned about the ways in which Africanist scholarship might become more African.

Telling Stories, Making Histories Mary Wren Bivins, 2007-03-30. Through reconstruction of oral testimony, folk stories, and poetry, the true history of Hausa women and their reception of Islam's vision of Muslim in Western Africa have been uncovered. Mary Wren Bivins is the first author to locate and examine the oral texts of the 19th-century Hausa women and challenge the written documentation of the Sokoto Caliphate. The personal narratives and folk stories reveal the importance of illiterate non-elite women to the history of jihad and the assimilation of normative Islam in rural Hausaland. The captivating lives of the Hausa are captured, shedding light on their ordinary existence as wives, mothers, and providers for their family on the eve of European colonial conquest.
