Invited Sessions at ACPA's Virtual Annual Meeting

Keynote Address

A. Teaming in the Modern Health Care Organization

Amy Edmonson, Harvard Business School

Methods/Description: In the complex, fast-paced, uncertain world of health care delivery, teaming that unfolds as a dynamic learning process is more important than ever. This session will explain the concept of teaming, how it is different from teams, and what it takes to do it well. Everyone today knows that diverse experts must come together to deliver great care. But teamwork across roles doesn't always go smoothly. I will describe why teaming thrives in a climate psychological safety—to ensure that everyone feels able to take the risks of speaking up and learning fast together—and depends on simple process skills.

ASCFS Invited Sessions

B. The Linton Whitaker Lecture

Dr. Ian Munro, MA, MB, FRCS, Naples, FL

Methods/Description: Dr Ian Munro is a pioneer in the field of craniofacial surgery, having played a key role in the development and establishment of the subspecialty. This lecture will follow Dr Munro's journey across several countries and multiple occupations, and discuss some of the major breakthroughs that have changed, improved, and simplified craniofacial surgery. Dr Munro will share insights he has gained from over 20 years of practice and offer advice to medical professionals just entering their field.

C. ASCFS/ACPA Panel: ERAS, AI, and Neural Network in Cleft and Craniofacial Care

Jack Yu (1) and Joseph Williams (2) Davinder Singh (3), Jeffrey Fearon (2), Mark Umeta (4), Colin Brady (5)

(1) Augusta University—Section of Plastic Surgery, Augusta, GA, (2) Children's Healthcare of Atlanta, GA, (3) Division of Plastic Surgery Phoenix Children's Hospital, Barrow Cleft and Craniofacial Center, Phoenix, AZ, (4) Children's Hospital Los Angeles, CA, (5) The Craniofacial Center, Dallas, TX

Background/Purpose: Educational Objectives: Cognitive: The attendees will understand what is ERAS and how to develop it. Psychomotor: The attendees will be able to organize and implement ERAS. Affective: The attendees will appreciate the importance and the value of AI and neural network in cleft and craniofacial care.

Methods/Description: There is a need to adopt Enhanced Recovery after Surgery, or ERAS, in cleft and craniofacial care. Developed in the 1990s, ERAS was the result of sustained and systematic approach to improve surgical outcomes and to reduce complications in colorectal and cardiothoracic surgery. Due to the tremendous success, both the AMA and ACS have accepted ERAS in recent years. However, to date, very few ERAS protocol or pathways exist in cleft and craniofacial care. The ASCFS established a presidential taskforce during its 2019 annual meeting in Tucson, Arizona, to address this. The proposed panel will provide the audience with information to bridge a critical gap in our knowledge and practice. The ASCFS taskforce has developed ERAS protocols for 5 commonly performed cleft and craniofacial procedures: lip repair, palatoplasty, alveolar bone graft, Le Fort I advancement, and FOAR. These ERAS protocols will be available to all attendees. As the second decade of this century closes, advances in AI, such as machine learning and neural network, have drastically transformed how we deliver health care in isolated areas. But the application will spread. The ability to mimic human cognition coupled with "Big Data," NSQIP, HCUP, and NCHS, to name just a few, will propel cleft and craniofacial care in ways we cannot even imagine at present. It is time that we take the first step.

I. Hearing Outcomes in Children with Orofacial Clefting: Implications for Management

Andrew Daniel (1), Fiona Duncan (1), David Fitzsimons (1)

(1) The Children's Hospital at Westmead, Sydney, New South Wales

Background/Purpose: Children with orofacial clefting conditions are at increased risk of middle ear pathology and hearing loss which requires a coordinated protocol of care and management. The aim of this study was to better understand and describe the profile of hearing loss in a group of children with orofacial clefting to better inform clinical recommendations for audiological surveillance, surgical management of ear pathology, and overall protocols of clinical care.

Methods/Description: A retrospective review of hearing outcome data was conducted for a group of 338 children, aged 5 years, with surgically repaired, nonsyndromic cleft lip and/or palate conditions, attending a tertiary referral hospital's cleft palate team between 2001 and 2019. Digital audiogram data was obtained from the electronic medical record and matched to the patient's cleft condition, syndromic status, cleft surgery history, including surgery for pressure-equalization (PE) tube insertion. Data were analyzed to inform current (and changing) clinical practices.

Results: Fifty-four percent (181/338) of patients obtained normal hearing sensitivity bilaterally by 5 years of age, with no difference in children with isolated cleft palate and those with cleft lip and palate. Of these patients with normal hearing sensitivity, 66% (120/181) required no PE tube insertion while the remaining 34% received between 1 and 4 sets of PE tubes. Of the 46% (157/338) of patients
