Coming of Age Francesca Purcell, 2005-07-14 In view of the increasing number of Third World countries considering the establishment of women s colleges to meet the demand for the higher education of women presenting a case study of two key women's colleges in the Philippines. Within the context of global, national, and local changes since the fall of Ferdinand Marcos in 1986, academic and administrative leaders at two prestigious women's colleges candidly discuss how their respective institutions adapted to their environments and how the colleges will fare in the future. Preferences for large coeducational institutions, the emergence of less expensive tertiary institutions, and the downward spiral of a weak national economy combined to destabilize the enrollment base of these colleges. Factors unique to the Philippines, including an increasing number of female overseas contract workers, struggles with national language preferences, and the growth of feminism, also affected the colleges. In response, the colleges expanded their curricula, chose high-profile presidents, focused on faculty development, and acquired technology. Decision makers at these colleges will have to continue in their efforts at solidifying their positions in the Philippine higher education system. The book that women's colleges worldwide must articulate their unique purposes and collaborate with other institutions to strengthen their organizations.

Tourism and Development in Sub-Saharan Africa Marina Novelli, 2015-09-16 Over the past 20 years, the perception of tourism as an effective contributor to socio-economic development in the developing world has propagated, with many viewing tourism as a provider for poverty alleviation and towards other UN Millennium Development Goals. Over the same period, readers have become familiar with the paradoxes, complexities, and inequalities of tourism in relation to development, wealth creation, growth, redistribution, governance, and hosts-guests relationships. This volume further extends this critical debate with a much-needed cohesive publication on Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA). In an era of fluctuating tourist arrivals at global level, the growth of tourism in SSA requires deeper consideration in terms of its inconsistent and questionable implications at local level. Taking as a central theme the debate on whether tourism should be used in development efforts, this book examines the way in which tourism has controversially become the way forward to development in several SSA locations and assesses bottlenecks to sustainable development, as well as dilemmas and challenges faced by those SSA destinations seeking to achieve development through tourism. It offers an explicit set of chapters adopting a multi-disciplinary approach, drawing upon tourism studies, human geography, sociology, anthropology, political economy, development, and environmental studies, and integrates case studies authored by local African practitioners and academics to produce a book that gave voice to local experts on local realities. Combining an overview of key theories, concepts, contemporary issues, and debates, as well as practical insights from a wide range of regions in SSA, this book will be a valuable resource for those investigating the role of tourism in development.
