Manion, 2012-12-06 The International Symposium on Scleroderris Canker of Conifers held June 21-24 1983 in Syracuse New York was the result of mutual interest expressed by the USDA Forest Service the Canadian Forestry Service and the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry SUNY ESF The Symposium was an official function of the working party canker diseases Scleroderris Subject group S 2 06 02 Division II IUFRO We wish to express our thanks to the USDA Forest Service Research and the Canadian Forestry Service for financial support of the program and SUNY ESF for hosting the Symposium A major research program was launched in 1977 to study the biology of the European strain as found in North America Support for this research resulted from special funding by the Congress of the United States to the USDA Forest Service North Central Forest Experiment Station Most of these funds were released as cooperative research grants to universities in the Lake States and the northeast Many of the research papers delivered at this Symposium are the direct result of these research grants While the Symposium deliberately emphasized the North American experience with Gremmeniella abietina in order to provide a focus for the meeting we were anxious that this Symposium would also include studies from other countries

Pocket Guide to Red Pine Diseases and Their Management Thomas H. Nicholls,1990 The Plant Disease Bulletin ,1974 Scleroderris Canker of Northern Conifers ,1972 Molecular Biology of Woody Plants

S.M. Jain,S.C. Minocha,2013-03-09 Woody plants belong to various taxonomic groups which are heterogeneous in morphology physiology and geographic distribution Otherwise they have neither strong evolutionary relationships nor share a common habitat They are a primary source of fiber and timber and also include many edible fruit species Their unique phenotypic behavior includes a perennial habit associated with extensive secondary growth Additional characteristics of woody plants include developmental juvenility and maturity with respect to growth habit flowering time and morphogenetic response in tissue cultures environmental control of bud dormancy and flowering cycles variable tolerance to abiotic stresses wounding and pathogens and long distance transport of water and nutrients Woody plants particularly tree species have been the focus of numerous physiological studies to understand their specialized functions however only recently they have become the target of molecular studies Recent advances in our understanding of signal transduction pathways for environmental responses in herbaceous plants including the identification and cloning of genes for proteins involved in signal transduction should provide useful leads to undertake parallel studies with woody plants Molecular mapping techniques coupled with the availability of cloned genes from herbaceous plants should provide shortcuts to cloning relevant genes from woody plants The unique phenotypes of these plants can then be targeted for improvement through genetic engineering

Somatic Embryogenesis in Woody Plants S. Mohan Jain,Pramod P.K. Gupta,R.J. Newton,2012-12-06 The quality of human life has been maintained and enhanced for generations by the use of trees and their products In recent years ever rising human population growth has put tremendous pressure on trees and tree products growing awareness of the potential of previously unexploited tree resources and environmental pollution have both accelerated development of new technologies for tree propagation breeding and improvement Biotechnology of trees may be the answer to solve the problems which cannot be solved by conventional breeding methods The combination of biotechnology and conventional methods such as plant propagation and breeding may be a novel approach to improving and multiplying in large number the trees and woody plants So far plant tissue culture technology has largely been exploited in the propagation of ornamental plants especially foliage house plants by commercial companies Generally tissue culture of woody plants has been recalcitrant However limited success has been achieved in tissue culture of angiosperm and gymnosperm woody plants A number of recent reports on somatic embryogenesis in woody plants such as Norway spruce Picea abies Loblolly pine Pinus taeda Sandalwood Santalum album Citrus Mango Mangifera indica etc offer a ray of hope of an inexpensive clonal propagation for large scale production of plants or seedlings or somatic embryo plants by protoplast work c cryopreservation d genetic transformation and e artificial or manufactured seed production

In Vitro Culture of Trees J.M. Bonga, Patrick Aderkas, 2013-06-29 Woody plants provide many challenges to the tissue culturist Although there are many excellent tissue culture books and manuals available these are generally strongly biased towards herbaceous crops Consequently they often do not pay sufficient attention to the problems that specifically apply to in vitro culture of tree species Culture of the latter often poses problems which are either absent or of lesser significance when culturing herbaceous species When trees in the field are used as explant source the problems can be especially severe For example the physiological condition of the explants is difficult to control because of variation in weather and biotic factors Furthermore it is often difficult to obtain explants free of contaminants from field grown trees Lack of genetic uniformity and maturation are additional problems one often has to deal with when culturing tree cells or tissues These problems are emphasized in this text In vitro culture of trees is not viewed in isolation It is considered in conjunction with breeding traditional cloning and other common tree improvement techniques The text discusses theoretical as well as practical aspects of the in vitro culture of trees

Agroforestry for Sustainable Land-Use Fundamental Research and Modelling with Emphasis on Temperate and Mediterranean Applications Daniel Auclair, C. Dupraz, 2013-03-09 This volume comprises a selection of original contributions presented at a workshop held in Montpellier France in June 1997 The two main objectives of the workshop were firstly to bring together what is understood about the processes underlying agroforestry practice and secondly to provide a forum to explore relevant models and modelling approaches The workshop was also able to play a role in examining the agroforestry systems encountered in temperate and Mediterranean areas including both traditional and more innovative agroforestry practices The main aspects discussed were ecological interactions amongst components environmental impact economics and policy modelling

Mechanical Properties of Bamboo Jules J.A. Janssen, 2012-12-06 In this book I have collected many reports on the properties of bamboo Since I started bamboo research in 1974 I have collected many publications on bamboo However in contacts with other researchers I became aware of the fact that several of these publications were unknown to them Consequently their activities in research or in bamboo projects had to start at a lower level than if they had known some of these publications Therefore I discussed the need for a book like this with several colleagues and I decided to start writing In this book I present data on properties as published by researchers Certainly it is not complete e g the proceedings of the bamboo workshop in Cochin in November 1988 are not included they arrived just too late to be taken into account On the other hand in writing this preface I realize I have forgotten my own thesis I do apologize to any colleague whose relevant report is not taken into account as well I like to express my feelings of respect to the board of my faculty they allowed me to spend so much time on this book and they gave a considerable financial support for the printing costs

Global Concerns for Forest Resource Utilization Atsushi Yoshimoto, Kiyoshi Yukutake, 2013-11-11 This book is a collection of papers presented at the international symposium on forest sector analysis held in Miyazaki Japan in 1998 It is structured with three themes understanding global forest sector issues discussing the contribution of modeling efforts to forest sector analysis and discussing the role of Japanese forest policy in a global sense The most important features are the case studies using various types of forest sector models From a modeling perspective changes in modeling efforts include more detail of spatial and multiple market levels intergenerational welfare concerns non market valuation issues and explicit treatment of the uncertainty inherent in both the policy process and in the biophysical systems The reader of this book will benefit not only from presentation of forest utilization issues in different nations but also from the interrelatedness of the theory and application of forest sector modeling
