Music and Institutions in Nineteenth-Century Britain Paul Rodmell,2016-04-29 In nineteenth century British society music and musicians were organized as they had never been before This organization was manifested in part by the introduction of music into powerful institutions both out of belief in music s inherently beneficial properties and also to promote music occupations and professions in society at large This book provides a representative and varied sample of the interactions between music and organizations in various locations in the nineteenth century British Empire exploring not only how and why music was institutionalized but also how and why institutions became musicalized Individual essays explore amateur societies that promoted music making institutions that played host to music making groups both amateur and professional music in diverse educational institutions and the relationships between music and what might be referred to as the institutions of state Through all of the essays runs the theme of the various ways in which institutions of varying formality and rigidity interacted with music and musicians and the mutual benefit and exploitation that resulted from that interaction

Romanticism

Gendered Andrea Fischerová,2020-11-09 This study focuses on the six writing men who have been throughout decades regarded as the alpha and omega of British Romanticism Byron Coleridge Keats Scott Shelley and Wordsworth It sees these men as a representative cohort of their time and examines their letters as results of a reading process Although letters are usually seen as additional sources of reference in literary studies in this book they are treated as the dominant information material correspondence enables to reconsider British Romanticism on the basis of the epistolary communication of the first half of the nineteenth century The target information from the letters are references to women writers and to their writings A detailed analysis of the correspondence manages to answer the question whether male Romantics regarded writing women as provoking from time to time as Duncan Wu assumes and whether the gender identity of the woman author influenced the way male readers read her literary works The examination of the correspondence thus takes a gendered perspective on British Romanticism This approach to the target research data discloses a long list of almost 120 names of women writers from different periods and of different literary genres Whereas the male readers in question have acquired a well established stable long term position within literary history the women were often marginalized even forgotten The study presents plentiful examples proving the discrepancies between what the twenty first century reader regards as the core of women s Romantic literary tradition and what the Romantic reader did The following women writers are discussed in the study in detail Susannah Centlivre Anne Finch Lady Winchelsea Ann Radcliffe Mary Robinson Felicia Hemans Mary Shelley Joanna Baillie Maria Edgeworth Maria Jane Jewsbury Catherine Grace Godwin and Emmeline Fisher

The Musical Traditions of Northern Ireland and its Diaspora David Cooper,2017-07-05 For at least two centuries and arguably much longer Ireland has exerted an important influence on the development of the traditional popular and art musics of other regions and in particular those of Britain and the United States During the past decade or so the traditional musics of the so called Celtic regions have become a focus of international interest The phenomenal success of shows such as Riverdance which appeared in 1995 spawned from a 1994 Eurovision Song Contest interval act brought Irish music and dance to a global audience and played a part in the further commoditization of Irish culture including traditional music However there has been until now relatively little serious musicological study of the traditional music of Northern Ireland Northern Ireland remains a divided community in which traditional culture in all its manifestations is widely understood as a marker of religious affiliation and ethnic identity Since the outbreak of the most recent troubles around 1968 the borders between the communities have often been marked by music For example many in the Catholic nationalist community regard the music of Orange flute bands and Lambeg drums as a source of intimidation Equally many in the Protestant community have distanced themselves from Irish music as coming from a different ethnic tradition and some have rejected tunes styles and even instruments because of their association with the Catholic community and the Irish Republic Of course during the same period many other Protestants and Catholics have continued to perform in an apolitical context and often together what in earlier times would simply have been regarded as folk or country music With the increasing espousal of a discrete Ulster Scots tradition since the signing of the Belfast or Good Friday Agreement in 1998 the characteristics of the traditional music performed in Northern Ireland and the place of Protestant musicians within popular Irish cult
