Markets In Oaxaca:

Markets in Oaxaca Scott Cook, Martin Diskin, 2014-01-09 Markets in Oaxaca is a study of the regional peasant marketing system in the Valley of Oaxaca Mexico. It relates the marketing system to other aspects of the regional economy to neighboring regions and to the Mexican national economy. Combining ethnographic theoretical and regional analyses, it suggests new directions in the fields of peasant and development studies. Contributors to the volume describe the operation and nature of several marketplaces in the region, analyze village-based artisan production and various specialized economic roles, particularly the role of traders, and describe the operation of several total regional marketing systems. The editors then consider their findings against the background of political, economic, and social structures from the pre-Conquest period to the present. In their conclusion, the editors find the regional peasant economy to be responsive both to the influence of the urban metropolitan sector on the one hand and to its own indigenous structural integrity and internal dynamism on the other. In addition to the editors, the contributors to Markets in Oaxaca are Ralph L. Beals, Richard L. Berg Jr., Beverly Chi, Herbert M. Eder, Charlotte Stollmaker, Carole Turkenik, John C. Warner, Ronald Waterbury, and Cecil R. Welte. Their essays combine analyses of the elements of the system within a comprehensive theoretical framework. Together, they present a complete and integrated view of a peasant economy.

Federico Federico Jiménez Caballero, 2021-04-06 From the day he was born, Federico Jiménez Caballero was predicted to be a successful man. So how exactly did a young boy from Tututepec, Oaxaca, become a famous Indigenous jewelry artist and philanthropist in Los Angeles? Federico tells the remarkable story of willpower, curiosity, hard work, and passion coming together to change one man's life forever. As a child growing up in a small rural town in southern Mexico, Federico Jiménez Caballero faced challenges that most of us cannot imagine, let alone overcome. From a young age, Federico worked tirelessly to contribute to his large family, yet his restless spirit often got him into trouble. Finding himself in the middle of a village-wide catastrophe, he was exiled to a boarding school in Oaxaca City, where he was forced to become independent, resilient, and razor sharp in order to stay afloat. Through his incredible people skills, bravery, and a few nudges from his bold mother, Federico found himself excelling in his studies and climbing the ranks in Oaxaca City. He always held a deep love and respect for his Mixtec Indigenous roots and began to collect Indigenous jewelry and textiles. Through a series of well-timed connections, Federico met his wife, Ellen, and shortly afterward, he came to the United States as a researcher at the University of California, Los Angeles, in the late 1960s. Carrying his passion for Indigenous jewelry with him from Oaxaca, Federico owned a series of shops in Los Angeles and sold jewelry at flea markets to well-known Hollywood stars. Over the years, he cultivated relationships and became a philanthropist as well as the owner of a museum in Oaxaca City. This book is the inspiring first-person account of eighty years in the life of a man who moved from humble beginnings to the bright lights of Hollywood, following his passion and creating long-lasting relationships as he climbed the ladder of success.

Markets and Exchanges in Pre-Modern and Traditional Societies Juan Carlos Moreno Garcia, 2021-06-30 Markets emerge in recent historical research as important spheres of economic interaction in ancient societies In the case of ancient Egypt traditional models imagined an all encompassing centralized bureaucratic economy that left practically no place for market transactions as many surviving documents only described the activities of the royal palace and of huge institutions mainly temples Yet scattered references in the sources reveal that markets and traders were crucial actors in the economic life of ancient Egypt In this perspective this volume aims to discuss the role of markets traders and economic interaction not necessarily organized through markets and the use of money metals valuable commodities in pre modern societies based on archaeological anthropological and historical evidence Furthermore it intends to integrate different perspectives about the social organization of transactions and exchanges and the different forms taken by markets from meeting places where exchanges operated under ritualized procedures and conventions to markets in which profit seeking activities were marginal in respect with other practices that stressed on the contrary community collaboration The book also deals with social forms of pre modern exchanges in which trust and ethnic solidarity guaranteed the validity of commercial operations in the absence of formal codes of laws or accepted authorities over long distances trade diasporas guilds etc Finally the volume analyzes a critical aspect of small scale trade and markets such as the commercialization of agricultural household production and its impact on the peasant economic strategies In all the book covers a diversity of topics in which recent research in the fields of economic sociology archaeology anthropology economics and history proves invaluable in order to analyze the role of Egyptian trade in a broader perspective as well as to suggest new venues of comparative research theoretical reflection and dialogue between Egyptology and social sciences making a living by doing many kinds of paid and unpaid work and sharing their resources within extended family networks. In fact, these strategies are practiced by rural people in many parts of the world but they have not been studied extensively in the United States. In The Livelihood of Kin, Rhoda Halperin undertakes a detailed exploration of this complex family-oriented economy, showing how it promotes economic well-being and a sense of identity for the people who follow it. Using actual life and work histories, Halperin shows how people make a living in between the cash economy of the city and the agricultural subsistence economy of the country. In regionally based three-generation kin networks, family members work individually and jointly at many tasks: small-scale agricultural production, food processing and storage, odd jobs, selling used and new goods in marketplaces, and wage labor, much of which is temporary. People can make ends meet even in the face of job layoffs and declining crop subsidies. With these strategies, people win a considerable degree of autonomy and control over their lives. Halperin also examines how such multiple livelihood strategies define individual identity by emphasizing a person's role in the family network over an occupation. She reveals through psychiatric case histories what damage can result when individuals leave the family network for wage employment in the cities, as increasing urbanization has forced many people to do. While certainly of interest to scholars of Appalachian studies, this lively and readable study will also be important for economic anthropologists and urban and rural sociologists.

Urban Labor Markets in Sub-Saharan Africa
Philippe De Vreyer, Francois Roubaud, 2013-06-07. Although labor is usually the unique asset upon which poor people can make a living, little is known about the functioning of labor markets in Sub-Saharan Africa. The purpose of this volume is to contribute to the building of knowledge in this area. In this book, the authors use a unique set of identical and simultaneous labor force surveys conducted in seven capitals of Western Africa, as well as in some other African countries: Cameroon, Madagascar, Democratic Republic of Congo, in the 2000s. They present innovative and original results on how people are faring in these labor markets, using up-to-date econometric and statistical methods. Because so little is known about labor markets in the region, each chapter starts with detailed descriptive statistics that aim to shed light onto specific aspects of African urban labor markets. Comparisons between the ten cities are systematically carried out. Descriptive sections are followed by in-depth analyses on various issues. The book is divided into four parts that examine 13 topics. Part I presents the main stylized facts, which are investigated further in a more analytical way throughout the volume. Part II focuses on job quality and labor market conditions such as unemployment and underemployment vulnerability and job satisfaction Part III explores the many dimensions of labor market inequalities through various lenses such as returns on education segmentation life cycle inequality with a particular focus on old age inter generational mobility time related inequality and gender and ethnic earnings discrimination Part IV addresses some key coping mechanisms and private responses with a focus on migration and child labor The book concludes with recommendations for future research Earth to Tables Legacies Deborah Barndt, Lauren E.
