good parent takes a lot of sacrifices and hard decisions another added Once a child is brought into the world someone else is taking on an occupation time and a big responsibility a boy noted Listening to teens respond like this over more than four decades gave me insight into what works and doesn't work for raising children and it better prepared me for when I too joined the ranks of parents Fortunately students and parents alike were quick to add that no parent is perfect and that I would make mistakes in raising children My kids made sure I knew when those mistakes were made
