Managing Innovative Development in Modern Economic Systems Elena G. Popkova, Aleksei V. Bogoviz, Artem Krivtsov, 2020-10-26 Innovation is of critical value in the modern global economy as it performs several important economic functions. The first is related to supporting the sustainability of socio-economic systems, preventing the emergence of crises and if they do occur, providing solutions to overcome their consequences. Secondly, innovation allows for the activation of economic growth and social progress through the rationalization of economic activities. Thirdly, innovation supports the global competitiveness of economic systems, allowing for the specialization of production and sales of unique goods that are in high demand in both domestic and global markets. At the same time, innovational development in economic systems is required to mitigate the high levels of risk and requires both effective management and a reliable normative and legal foundation. This book studies the economic and legal foundations of managing the innovational development of economic systems from an interdisciplinary perspective, bringing together the thoughts of international scholars in management economics and law.

Managing Knowledge, Governing Society Alain-Marc

Rieu, 2021-11-29 Since the 1980s, two different paradigms have reshaped industrial societies: the Neoliberal paradigm and the Research and Innovation paradigm. Both have been conceptualized and translated into strong policies with massive economic and social consequences. They provide divergent responses to the environmental transition. The Neoliberal paradigm is based on economic models and geopolitical solutions. The Research and Innovation paradigm's goal is to manage knowledge differently in order to reorient the evolution of society. Since the mid-1990s, a version of the Research and Innovation paradigm has led to the design of large-scale research and innovation policies. This book examines how these policies have evolved and how they can be extended and reformed to respond to present and future environmental constraints. It studies the mutation of the conception, organization and role of science and technology in the evolution of industrial societies and explores the future of these developments The book offers three unique lines of enquiry The first is to focus not specifically on economics sociology political science or history but on knowledge creation from an institutional and reflexive point of view The second is to establish a convergence between the British school of science and technology studies and the research trends opened by the work of Michel Foucault Both introduced trans disciplinary and policy oriented research associating case studies long term perspectives and theory The third is to consider climate change as the overwhelming challenge of our time The book is an insightful guide for students scholars and researchers across the humanities and social sciences including philosophy political science law economics business and media
